Troops to Remain in Germany, Big 3 Say

Nats Thump Boston, 10-5, After Losing Opener, 8-1

Griffs Get 19 Hits In Nightcap; Yost Slams Two Homers; Marrero Saves Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, May 14.—The Nats, the imps, suddenly reared up late this afternoon and impudently slapped down the Red Sox in their private Fenway Park preserves, 10-5, to get an even break in a double header.

Populated by so many ex-Red Sox that Senator McCarthy would probably demand a loyalty test, the Nats blew the first game, 8-1. But in that second game they suddenly got tough and outmuscled the team that had beat 'em 31 times in their last 36 games here.

They mustered their peak batting attack of the season, 19 hits, and staged a six-run fifth inning to disillusion the Red Sox and their 31,148 fans of any notions of a double victory for Boston.

Yost Hits Two Homers

In the first game, Mel Parnell subdued 'em completely after Eddie Yost opened for the Nats with a first inning homer, and the defeat was charged to Lloyd Hittle. Yost also got the Nats their last run of the day, a homer in the ninth inning of the second game.

Dick Weik was the winning pitcher in the finale, but he needed a big lift from the Nats' somewhat sensational Cuban reliefer, Conrado Marrero. With the bases full in the seventh after Weik had walked two runs in, Marrero walked in and struck out the dangerous Walt Dropo for the third out.

It was one more swelegant relief job for Marrero, who blanked the Red Sox through the eighth and ninth and now has pitched 18 innings of relief ball while yielding only one run.

Eddie Robinson's third inning triple to right produced the Nats' first two runs in the second game, and Sam Mele, who got four hits in a row, singled Robinson home to give the Nats a 3-0 lead against Al Papai.

But Dropo, who had hit a two-run homer in the first game, belted a three-runner in the fourth off Weik to tie it up. It was another of his clouts over the left-field wall, raising his total to six for the 15 games he has played since moving back from Louisville.

But two innings later, the Nats knocked knuckle-baller Papai out of the box and also his successor, Charlie Schantz. They rattled off six hits in a row in their six-run inning—Stewart's double to left, Robinson's single to center, Mele's double to left (Schantz in), Dente's single to left, Comb's single to left and Grasso's double to left. Yost got the sixth run of the session in with a single to left.

Weik's 9-3 lead began to dwindle with two out in the seventh. He pitched singles to Di Maggio and Zarilla, and then walked Williams and Stephens to force a run in.

McMahon Calls For 'Mightiest Peace Crusade'

New York, May 14 (NYHT).—Senator Brien McMahon, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, today said the United States must "mobilize the mightiest peace crusade in modern history" if the devastating warfare is to be avoided.

In an address here McMahon (D., Conn.) called for an all-out effort by the United States and its associates in the United Nations to "banish mass destruction weapons."

Breaks Loose From Moorings

Gaming Ship Nearly Blown Ashore at Colonial Beach

Colonial Beach, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—A barge, being outfitted for use here as a gambling ship, was blown loose from its moorings and almost ran ashore this afternoon.

The bulky Pleasure Island, which arrived offshore a week ago, pulled away from one anchor in a 45-mile wind, which built up 5-foot waves. But the other anchor, after dragging for a time, finally held with the aid of a small tugboat, and the vessel came to rest facing into the wind, about 250 feet offshore, in Maryland territory.

Police and a crowd of spectators stood on shore awaiting the outcome of the struggle by a half a dozen men to keep the barge out in the river. Police did not indicate whether they intended to raid the vessel in the event it touched the Virginia shore.

However, persons familiar with the gambling situation here said no gambling equipment has been placed aboard the Pleasure Island, and expressed the opinion police would have no legal ground for a raid.

Meantime, a fourth slot machine pier, the Little Reno, was in operation after opening Saturday night, with capacity crowds jamming the 36-by-40-foot structure and playing its 17 machines. The pier, built by D. W. Connor, has rose-colored fluorescent lights, a knotty pine interior and a long bar. Saturday night more than 2000 persons patronized it and it was jammed for hours today. Hard liquor and beer were sold Saturday, under license from Charles County, Md., but only beer today.

The pier has a one-inch separation in its construction so it is not connected with the Virginia shore.

Winnipeg Area Flood Exodus Nears 75,000

River Drops Slightly, But New Crest Is Expected Tuesday

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 14 (AP). Thousands fled Greater Winnipeg today, heeding warnings from officials that the flooding Red River will hit a new high early this week, with the danger acute for many days to come.

The new crest is expected here within 48 hours—about noon Tuesday—D. M. Stephens, Manitoba's deputy resources minister, announced. It will be a long crest, the water remaining at the peak level "anything up to a week," he added.

The high level of the Red, the coming rise of its tributaries and the constant threat of heavy rains anywhere in the watershed "could add to the danger at any time over this period," Stephens said.

Almost 75,000 persons—mostly women and children—have left the city. The normal population is 350,000.

The water level fell tonight from 30.2 feet to 30.1 feet. This was the first decrease in two weeks, but experts are not convinced the Red will not go higher. A 2-foot increase would change the so-far orderly exodus into a rout.

Brig. R. E. A. Morton, flood-control commander, has ready for use, if needed, an over-all disaster plan, including an army-directed general evacuation of the whole metropolitan area.

Flood-control officials said, however, the plan is an insurance policy that is not expected to be used.

But heavy rain or a sudden surge in the Assiniboine, a Red River tributary, could raise the Red above the predicted 31-foot crest. If the level should hit 32.5 feet, water would spread through the main business section.

Premier Douglas Campbell of Manitoba has announced that vital supplies are being stockpiled at strategic points on high ground. Bread is being stored, eggs are being kept off the market, public notices, priority passes and ration cards are being printed.

Pilot Dies as F-80 Sets 3 Houses Afire at Denver

Aurora, Colo., May 14 (AP).—The pilot was killed and a civilian was burned today when an Air Force F-80 jet fighter crashed and set afire three houses in this Denver suburb.

Insurance man Joe Gaetes was working in his garden at the time of the crash. His back was seared.

The plane exploded against the side of a bungalow owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harrell. It demolished the garage and set fire to the house.

The pilot's body dropped into the kitchen. Flaming bits of wreckage set fire to the other two houses in the block. The Harrells and their two children were out for the afternoon.

Area Pilgrims in Rome Share In Services at Four Basilicas

Miss Kathryn E. Bowers, public relations assistant at the Hamilton National Bank, is hostess for 240 Washington Archdiocesan Holy Year pilgrims to Rome. She is reporting to The Washington Post from time to time on the events of her trip. Today's letter covers the trip from Lourdes to Rome.

Enroute to Rome, May 4.

Dear Reader,

We left the little village of Lourdes on Thursday morning and traveled along the French Riviera all day and into the night. Our pilgrims had four coaches to themselves, but other coaches, through which we had to pass to get to the dining car, carried French prisoners in chains as well as peasants hauling live chickens and huge loaves of bread!

The eight in our compartment were not called for lunch until the last sitting, which was 3 p. m. We were so glad we had taken fruit from the hotel—oranges and apples never tasted better. I had salted nuts and candy which helped, too. The meals were quite good and were served well, considering the hazards of train travel. We were called in to dinner as the train neared Marseilles, and had just finished soup when the engineer applied the brakes most unexpectedly as well as with terrific impact. Every dish and piece of flat silver slid off to the floor and a

Inonu Party Said to Trail In Election

3 or More Cabinet Ministers Defeated, According to Most Turkish Newspapers

Istanbul (Monday), May 15 (AP).—Mounting reports today indicated a landslide of votes swept President Ismet Inonu's government out of power in yesterday's general elections.

There was still nothing official to back up these reports, but virtually all morning newspapers here said it appeared that Celal Bayar's five-year-old Democrat Party had won a majority of the new Grand National Assembly's 487 seats.

There was no report from the headquarters of Inonu's governing People's Party, which has held power for 30 years.

Radio Ankara, which had been expected to broadcast from the Turkish capital results of the election tabulation periodically, confined itself chiefly to light music.

The Democrat Party headquarters said that on the basis of independent information, three cabinet ministers had been defeated in their constituencies.

The opposition said the three defeated are Cemil Sait Barlas, Minister of State and coordinator in Turkey for the Marshall Plan; Cemal Sater, Minister of Commerce, and Cavid Uran, Minister of Agriculture.

An independent source said the Democrats had swept the Province of Sivas. This would mean the defeat of Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak.

Under Turkey's constitution only elected deputies can be named to ministerial posts.

The voters chose 487 deputies to the Grand National Assembly which, in turn, will name the president and governor.

The elections followed one of the bitterest and freest campaigns in the nation's history. The vote far exceeded that cast in Turkey's first free election in 1946.

The People's Party, founded by President Kemal Ataturk, was Turkey's only party until 1945. The following year the Democrat Party, headed by Bayer, a former Premier under Ataturk, made its first race, electing 31 deputies.

In the 1950 campaign, Bayer called for economy, a balanced budget, lower living costs and relaxation of government controls over major industries.

Stranded Whales Shot As 50,000 Scots Watch

Dunbar, Scotland, May 14 (U.P.)—An army firing squad shot 41 stranded "killer" whales to death on the beach at dusk this evening before an estimated 50,000 persons.

A total of 147 whales had swum ashore, blindly following their bull-whale leader. Only 41 remained alive when the soldiers opened fire.

Full Text of London Agreement on Germany

The following is the text of the Big Three Foreign Ministers' declaration on Germany:

1. Following the London agreements of June, 1948, and the Washington agreements of April, 1949, the U. S. A., France and the United Kingdom replaced the military authority and the direct administration of the occupied territories in force since 1945 by a civilian regime simply of supervision. By virtue of this regime Germany was able to produce a constitution, proceed to free elections, call a parliament, form a government and elect a federal president. The federal government and the governments of the Laender (states) were able to take over the administration and control of internal German affairs.

Furthermore, by the agreement of 13th April, 1949, the Allies decided to ease the burden of reparations on Germany. Some months later, under the Petersberg protocol, an agreement was reached for a final settlement in regard to the delivery of plants by way of reparations.

In the domain of foreign relations, the Petersberg protocol made provision for the appointment of German consular and commercial representatives abroad. During the last few months, steps have been taken by the Western powers to secure the accession of the federal republic to a number of international organizations, including the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. Finally, she has been invited to join the Council of Europe. The progress made has been accomplished in large measure thanks to the action and the influence of the three Allied high commissioners, in whom the three Foreign Ministers are happy again to express their full confidence.

2. The Allies are resolved to pursue their aim, laid down in the Washington agreement of April, 1949, and reaffirmed at Petersberg, that Germany shall reenter progressively the community of free peoples of Europe. When that situation has been fully reached, she would be liberated from controls to which she is still subject and accorded her sovereignty to the maximum extent compatible with the basis of the occupation regime. This regime is imposed on the Germans and on the Allies by the consequences of the division of Germany and of the international position; until this situation is modified, it must be retained in accordance with the common interests of Germany and of Europe.

The western powers desire to see the pace of progress towards this end as rapid as possible. Progress will depend upon the degree of confident and frank cooperation displayed by the government and people of the federal republic. In the first place, the pace will be determined by the extent to which the Allies can be satisfied that their own security is safeguarded by the development in Germany of a desire for peace and friendly association with themselves. In the second place, the pace will be set by the rate at which Germany advances toward a condition in which true democracy governs and the just liberties of the individual are assured. Therefore, the Western powers wish to emphasize most strongly that the natural desire of the German people to secure relaxation of controls and the restoration of the sovereignty of their country depends for its satisfaction only upon the efforts of the German people themselves and of their government. They earnestly trust that the federal republic will fulfill in this respect the hopes placed in the wisdom of her people and her leaders. Meanwhile, the high commissioners, in exercising the powers reserved to them, will continue to place their main emphasis upon essential elements of security and fundamental democratic issues of real importance.

3. In view of the continued refusal of the Soviet government to permit the inhabitants of their zone of occupation to rejoin their fellow countrymen in a democratic and united Germany, it has not been possible, and will not be as long as their Soviet policy persists, to proceed to the conclusion of a treaty of peace with Germany. The ministers accordingly agreed to set up a study group in London to undertake the necessary preparatory work to enable the occupation statute to be reviewed at the appointed time and to make recommendations for eliminating the major practical inconveniences arising in the countries concerned from the state of war, on the understanding that in the present situation of Europe supreme authority must remain in the hands of the Allied powers.

4. While retaining the framework outlined above, the Allies intend to give Germany the possibility of developing freely, while at the same time safeguarding the possibility of peaceful reunification of Germany, which remains the ultimate object of their policy. The three governments reaffirm the offers which were formulated during the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers last June, and express the hope that the necessary conditions for the establishment of a government for all Germany may be achieved which would guarantee to all Germans respect for their laws and fundamental liberties, and they have agreed upon the conditions which are necessary, in their opinion, for this purpose.

Hits at Isolationism

Truman Says Reds Do Utmost Short of War to Split Nations

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Aboard Truman Train, May 14. President Truman today pointedly ignored Senator Joseph R. McCarthy in his home State of Wisconsin, but struck again at communism and the isolationist "counsel of despair."

In his first truly "nonpolitical" day since last Sunday, Soviet Russia displaced the "selfish interests" as the Sabbath target of his one major speech. "Mother's Day" was his theme in two others.

What undoubtedly saved McCarthy from a blast in his own bailiwick was the President's rule against "political" speeches on Sundays. Instead, Mr. and Mrs. Truman and Margaret attended services at the Grace Episcopal Church in Wisconsin's capital city, Madison.

Then, before riding into Chicago for his one avowedly political speech Monday night, the President recapitulated all of the Administration's foreign policy moves for world peace.

Speaking at the University of Wisconsin field house, Mr. Truman charged Russia "is doing everything it can, short of war, to prevent common international action among nations."

As in Fargo, N. Dak., last night he told the Wisconsin crowd we have "no other choice" but to work steadfastly with other free nations "to solve a problem larger and more difficult than any other we have ever faced."

"Isolation is no alternative," he said. "Isolationism is a counsel of despair. Isolationism would bring on another war, and it would be a war in which we might stand alone.

"In our own self-interest, therefore, we must cooperate with other free nations. We must join with them in a common defense against aggression and in providing greater opportunities for human advancement."

A crowd estimated at 12,000 cheered the President at the University of Wisconsin field house. The university band gave him Wisconsin's traditional "skyrocket" yell.

The speech was part of ceremonies dedicating Filene House as new international headquarters of the Credit Union National Association. Wisconsin was one of the first States to charter credit unions and the association is holding its sixteenth annual convention here. After his speech at the university the President drove to the site of the Edward A. Filene me-

Greek Women Shun Milk Powder When Twins Come

Lake Success, May 14.—Expectant mothers in Polykastron, Greece, could not be persuaded to use powdered milk until they were told it contained very special ingredients, agents of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund reported today.

Subsequently, the first two women to use powdered milk gave birth to twins on the same day—the first twins born in the village in 10 years.

Now fund officials are trying to convince women that powdered milk and twins are not related, because once again the mothers won't touch it.

State's Reply Full of Error, McCarthy Says

Senator Finds Facts 'Misstated' in Letter To Nation's Editors

New York, May 14 (U.P.).—Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) said tonight the State Department's "white paper" implying he is a premeditated liar "contains at least several glaring and apparently deliberate misstatements of fact."

He said he had not seen the department's document on his recent speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors. But he added, "from the brief reports in the newspapers, however, I note that it contains . . . a number of deceitful attempts to play upon words."

McCarthy disputed the department's statement that Ambassador-at-Large Phillip C. Jessup was "merely one of 50 trustees" and never chairman of the research advisory committee of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

He said Jessup in 1944 was "chairman of the research advisory committee (which controlled the publication in question)." McCarthy said the department is "painfully aware" of "Jessup's sworn testimony" about his connection with the institute and the advisory committee.

The State Department also states that Jessup belonged to no Communist-front organizations," McCarthy said. "I gave photostatic proof to the (Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee) committee that he was affiliated with five organizations listed by the Attorney General or congressional committees as fronts for the Communist Party."

McCarthy said the department's remarks about George Wheeler were "another example of the department's playing upon words in an attempt to deceive." McCarthy had asserted that Wheeler, who renounced democracy to live behind the Iron Curtain, had been cleared by the department's Loyalty Board. This the department denied.

Peaceful World Nation's Aim

Cabinet Members Star on TV; Report U. S. More Prosperous

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—President Truman's Cabinet members starred on television today and they pictured the Nation as peace-loving and more prosperous than ever.

They said the Administration is trying to keep it that way and to build a peaceful world, but its tasks are not yet completed.

Enactment of Mr. Truman's Fair Deal program would help them do the job, they declared.

Their reports were given in a televised Cabinet session. In addition to the television audience about 2000 persons in Chicago's Civic Opera House saw the session.

The session topped the second day of a national Democratic conference and Jefferson Jubilee celebration. About 3000 party leaders from all States are in town for the rally.

Mr. Truman will cap the show Monday night with a major speech at the Chicago Stadium. A colorful torchlight parade will welcome him.

Sounding a background chord for his talk, his Cabinet members today painted a rosy picture of the domestic scene. They expressed hope and determination for peaceful foreign relations.

James E. Webb, Acting Secretary of State, said the price of peace is high but he believes "we will pay that price and that all free peoples will pay it" to build a peaceful world.

Speaking in place of Secretary of State Acheson, who is in Europe, Webb said the State Department is determined to "make us happy at home and respected abroad" despite Soviet Russia's "world-wide campaign of hate, conspiracy, violence and aggression."

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer declared that American business is "fundamentally sound" and the Nation is enjoying its most prosperous period in history. However, he said, some industries are having a hard time and some workers are being laid off, so there are things to "worry about."

Secretary of Labor Tobin said 58,700,000 American workers held jobs in April—the highest total in history. Ten years ago the total was 47,500,000. He said this shows the Democratic philosophy of labor relations is paying off in great economic strength for the Nation "despite handicaps" of the Taft-Hartley law. Tobin wants the law repealed.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said the farmers are doing all

As Strike Is Extended

Progress Toward Rail Peace Via Package Offer Reported

Chicago, May 14 (U.P.).—Negotiators made "some progress' today toward settling the coast-to-coast strike of locomotive firemen, but the union called walkouts against five more divisions of the Southern Railway.

Stripped-down negotiating teams of three men from each side worked on a "package" proposal seeking an early end to the strike. They conferred five hours before breaking up.

Francis A. O'Neill, jr., head of the National Railway Mediation Board, who attended the session, reported that "definitely some progress was made."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen extended their strike against the Southern system, one of five tied up in the walkout, at Asheville and Charlotte, N. C., Columbia and Charleston, S. C., and Birmingham, Ala.

But it was learned the disputants have agreed in principle to submit the union's chief demand — employment of an additional fireman on multiple-unit diesel locomotives—to arbitration.

Apparently still at issue was a side union demand for a fireman on small, so-called "teapot" diesels used in yard switching. At present the small engines operate only with an engineer.

Sources reported the new settlement proposals had found favor with the union.

No Treaty Talks While Split Exists, West Warns

Statement in London Marks Bonn Regime For Full Integration Into Western Europe

London, May 14 (AP).—America, Britain and France will keep their troops in Germany and refuse to write a peace treaty as long as Russian policy divides the country, the three Western Foreign Ministers announced tonight.

Nevertheless, West Germany will be fully integrated into western Europe, and gradually freed of controls to the maximum possible under the occupation regime.

These were the main lines of a declaration on Germany prepared by United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman in three days of conferences which ended yesterday. Their statement on Germany was made public tonight.

Refer To Selves As 'Allies'

For the first time since the war the role of American, British and French forces in Germany was stressed as a means of defense against Russia, not as a police force to hold down Germany.

The three Western powers officially referred to themselves as "the Allies," and to West Germany as "Germany."

The Western Allies do not recognize the East German Communist government.

The stress on the defense mission of Allied troops in Western Germany may be particularly significant in view of the fact that foreign ministers of the 12-nation Atlantic Pact open a session here Monday.

There have been reports that consideration may be given to enlarging the pact into a Western defense organization to include not only Germany but Sweden, Turkey and other nations.

Unconfirmed reports published here also said a new supreme Western defense command may be placed under an American, presumably Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff. This command would replace the present five-nation Brussels Pact defense organization headed by British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

Today's declaration dashed any hopes entertained by Germans that the Western powers would enter into a separate peace treaty for the West German government at Bonn.

"In view of the continued refusal of the Soviet government to permit inhabitants of their zone of occupation to rejoin their fellow countrymen in a democratic and unified Germany, it has not been possible, and will not be as long as this Soviet policy persists, to pro-

Siamese Twins Die Under Knife; Hearts Joined

Edmonton, Alta., May 14 (AP).—A 20-year-old mother gambled the lives of Canada's only Siamese twins—and lost—on this Mother's Day when her 9-month-old babies died as doctors tried to separate them.

Brenda and Beverly, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Townsend of Towfield, Alberta, died during a three-hour operation.

Dr. Eardley S. Allin, the surgeon in charge, said the doctors unexpectedly found the hearts of the infants were joined, linked by a fibrous covering of membrane that they had not detected in tests before the operation.

"One-half of the heart of each baby was actually beating within the chest of the other," Dr. Allin said. "This was not apparent on either X-rays or fluoroscopic screening."

Dr. Allin said there had been a reasonable chance the surgery would have succeeded, but that the doctors ran into three "unavoidable hazards." They were:

1. Separating the livers, which were three inches thick at the center where the babies were joined.
2. It was impossible to close the chests without compressing and distorting the hearts.
3. Closing the abdominal walls caused pressure on the abdomens, which increased the action of the diaphragms.

Weather and Insects Cut Grain Surplus, Relieve Pressure on Price-Support Program

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Bugs and weather—too dry in some places, too wet in others—have taken the Government farm price support program off the hot spot.

Just as Uncle Sam was getting every bin filled with grain and wondering where he was going to put next year's harvest, nature stepped in and played hob with the winter wheat crop.

But before the men at the Commodity Credit Corporation who run the price support operations could take a deep breath and calm themselves, another worry popped up.

Many farmers are expected soon to pay their loans on grain in storage—because of better prices due to the indicated wheat shortage.

As a result, some members of Congress are asking why does CCC need the extra two billion dollars it is asking for the support program. The two billion was asked last January, they point out. Total Government investments under the price support program ran up to four billion by February 28. By March 31 they had increased very little. By now it is expected they have dropped materially, or at least they will if the present price trend continues.

This attitude has officials genuinely worried. They have enough money, they say, to run the programs until the end of the crop year, June 30. But they do not have enough for what the programs next year may cost. The law says that they can't announce next year's programs—the levels of support, etc.—unless they have the funds to carry them out.

The result is that the farmers are now planting their crops without knowing what the Government guarantee will be.

Look for a lot of heat to be put on the Senate to pass the additional authorization for CCC quickly. Unless it is passed the next CCC financial report may show that a hundred million or several hundred million dollars borrowed on grain have been paid back.

Last week the American Farm Bureau Federation was asking Senators why the Senate hasn't acted yet. The House voted the additional funds. The Senate committee however, amended the measure on a motion by Senator Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.) to provide grain dealers a cut on the Government payments. It then had to call the bill back from the floor to take that amendment out. Then it added a new amendment, at the request of Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) to bar imports of commodities protected by price supports. The State Department, Economic Cooperation Administration and others don't like that amendment. Even if the Senate should pass the bill, it will have to go back to the House for concurrence in these changes.

The shortage in winter wheat—the Crop Reporting Board Wednesday forecast 690 million bushels, or three-fourths of last year's corp has strengthened all grains.

Next month the board will report on spring wheat. Already evidence is appearing that spring wheat may be as badly hit as the winter variety. Floods in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana have delayed planting. In many sections, it is now too late to put in wheat. This applies, as well, to many sections in Canada. In spite of traffic, there is close sympathy between Canadian wheat conditions and ours.

The Nation's biggest spring wheat planter, Tom Campbell, the Montana "wheat king," told The Washington Post yesterday that on his 50,000 acres of wheat land there will be little planted this year. "We are turning to oats, flax and barley," Campbell said.

He added his prediction that spring wheat will not total more than 150 million bushels, or about half last year's harvest. In fact, Campbell declared that the total wheat crop may not go above 830 million bushels. "We'll thank our lucky stars we have the carryover we have due to price supports," Campbell predicted.

Meanwhile all programs covering perishable or nonstorable crops are off or soon will be. No program for hogs has been announced. Better prices have shut off a storm of protest that otherwise would be sweeping in from the farmlands.

Many grains are selling above support levels plus all storage costs, etc. that have accumulated. Campbell reported he was offered a price equal to $2.45 a bushel for his wheat at Hardin, Mont., by mills that are seeking best grades.

The Government may soon start selling stocks in inventory—that it has bought direct or taken through foreclosure of loans. It may act as soon as the market makes that profitable.

"We have a duty to protect the consumer against prices pushed up artificially by withheld Government stocks, as well as to protect the producer against low prices," Ralph S. Trigg, CCC head explained yesterday.

Uncle Sam Can't Win In Cotton Dealing

The Government is playing "heads you win, tails I lose" on cotton.

During the war the Government sold cotton, bought to support farm prices, at a profit. It can't again.

The potent farm bloc has a new law. From now on, when Uncle Sam takes possession of cotton, he must pool each bale with the name of the grower on it. If sold for more than the Government paid, the profit goes back to the grower. But the Government must assume any loss.

House Members Reported Cool To More Omnibus Money Bills

By The Associated Press

Four weeks of actual experience have convinced many House members that one appropriation bill to run the Government, long a dream of congressional reorganizers, is not such a hot idea.

It was tried this year, largely at the insistence of the Senate and Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee.

The idea was to put into a single measure all departmental appropriation bills which previously had been handled separately. The theory was that Congress thus would get a better picture of finances.

This year's bill totaled 29 billion dollars and it took the House four tedious weeks to dispose of it.

The Senate hasn't had first-hand experience with the bill yet but soon will have its chance. House leaders suspect that the Senate will cool off on the idea quickly.

Main objections voiced in the House are that the bill is too unwieldy (more than 400 pages long); that reductions can't be planned wisely; that it takes too long to consider, and that the members lose interest after a few days.

"It's a lemon," said Representative Taber of New York, top Republican on the Appropriations Committee.

"I doubt if we'll try it again," said Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts.

Cannon reserved his opinion, but associates represented him as doubtful about the merits of the proposal he had advocated.

Speaker Sam Rayburn never was keen about the one-package bill.

After it gets clear of the Senate, the bill must go to a Senate-House Conference Committee and that small group ultimately will have a lot to say about the final allotments. Many members don't like the idea of a few men having so much influence over the Federal pocketbook.

Taber believes Republicans could have made deeper cuts in the President's budget if the old system of separate bills had been followed. They did finally get across an amendment making a blanket $600 million cut.

Democrats take the position that the one big cut was unwise because it treated essential and less-essential Federal services the same.

Another objection to the bill was the strong possibilities it offered for 'log rolling," a procedure by which members band together to support pet projects. Whether by design or otherwise, none of the bill's allotments for projects important in home districts was cut deeply, although all shared in the blanket reduction to some extent. In fact, one of these allotments, for building public hospitals in the various States, actually was increased $75 million.

memorial for cornerston laying ceremonies.

Mr. Truman praised the cooperative, mutual assistance principle in meeting credit, farm and housing problems of the individual and said we are using the same method "to preserve freedom and achieve peace in the world."

In Grace Episcopal Church, across from the Statehouse, Mr. and Mrs. Truman, Margaret and other members of the President's party dedicated prayers for the fruitlessness of crops, and the Rev. John H. Keene, rector, preached a sermon on that theme.

There was the usual Episcopal "prayer for the President of the United States." Then the rector informally welcomed the President and his family to the church and wished them a "happy stay in Madison.

Mr. Truman set the day's "nonpolitical" tone at early morning whistle stops at Altoona and Elroy, two Wisconsin towns he stumped in 1948.

"All I can say to you is that I hope you have a pleasant Sunday and that you go to church," he told the crowd at Altoona.

He wished the Elroy station throng "a most pleasant Mother's Day" and suggested they, too go to church.

"The only reason we stopped here this morning is because we stopped here once before and I just wanted to greet you and say good morning."

As the train stopped at the roundhouse on Commercial Ave. in Madison, Oscar Rennebohm, Republican Governor of Wisconsin, entered the President's private car.

"I told him I was sincerely pleased to welcome him to our State," Rennebohm told reporters. "I feel that way. He's our President."

A copy of the Madison Capital Times, edited by William T. Evjue, was handed aboard. The newspaper carried a letter to the President, captioned: "We apologize, Mr. President."

"While you are here, Mr. President, we want to tender to you and through you, to the Nation our apology for a tragic mistake we made in the year 1946," the Capitol Times letter read in part.

"It was in that year that our people suffered a political aberration and replaced a great Senator, Robert M. LaFollette, jr., with a demogogue who has since brought disgrace to the State and to the Nation. We refer, of course, to Joseph R. McCarthy.

"Words cannot express, Mr. President, the shame we feel at the conduct of this man. . . ."

In laying the cornerstone of the new Filene House, Mr. Truman paid tribute to the late Boston department store executive and philanthropist for whom it was named. He said Filene often visited him and "always had some constructive idea to offer that was in the public interest" and never a selfish one.

As at Spokane's Gonzaga University four days ago, a high moral tone ran through his dedicatory speech.

"We have a moral duty to protect the exercise of freedom here and in other lands," he said.

"Freedom is a relationship between equals. We believe that men are equal because we believe that they are all creatd by God."

Voicing satisfaction that Congress has authorized his (Point Four) program to increase aid to underdeveloped areas, he termed it one of the most important factors in promoting world trade and building world peace.

"I am determined that this work shall go forward energetically," he said.

right, too. But he declared they need his farm subsidy plan to keep up with the Nation's prosperity pace.

Whereas the farmers were "bankrupt" 20 years ago, he said they have become economically healthy under the Roosevelt and Truman Democratic Administrations. But they need "strengthening" of price supports, he added. His plan would let most farm products find their price levels in the open market and have the Government pay farmers the difference.

Attorney General McGrath put in a plug for President Truman's civil rights program. He said the Justice Department is on a "crusade to bring equal justice to every citizen, regardless of race, creed or origin."

Frank Pace, Secretary of the Army, said unification of the Nation's military forces is a "working reality" now and "great progress" has been made in national defense plans since 1948. He spoke in place of Secretary of Defense Johnson, who was unable to attend.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder reported that the Nation's credit is "unquestioned throughout the world" despite a "tremendous" Federal debt of 250 billion dollars. His report was read by Undersecretary Edward Foley.

Postmaster General Donaldson said the postal service has grown "phenomenally," with mail volume twice that of 10 years ago. He renewed the Administration's plea for increases in postal rates.

Communist Purge Reported in Poland

Near Chusan

Red Raiders Repulsed, Chinese Say

Taipei, Formosa, May 14 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalists reported tonight that the Communists had been repulsed in a small rehearsal of their expected invasion of Chushan, Nationalist island base 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

The Nationalist dispatches said 20 Red boats attacked one of the numerous small islands near Chushan Friday, but every one was sunk.

The Nationalists gave no further word of their own raid Friday on the mainland town of Shihepu, 50 miles southwest of Chushan. Belated accounts, however, disclosed a similar raid had been made on two villages in the same area 10 days ago. The raiders were said to have withdrawn after inflicting heavy losses on the Red garrisons.

The Nationalist Army paper Sao Tang Pao said the Red invasion program may have been upset by the raids.

Formosa, itself, protected by 100 miles of open sea from the mainland, regards a Red "inside job" as a threat as great as an actual invasion.

The National defense ministry made this clear in a statement Saturday asserting a Communist fifth column had been broken up.

However, it acknowledged the plot had reached into the defense ministry itself, and Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo, chief of the ministry's political section, informed Red agents still uncaught that they could keep their jobs if they would send in "letters of repentance."

(Hongkong Chinese papers meanwhile reported the Reds had smashed an anti-Communist underground in the Canton area, arresting 50 persons.)

Warsaw, May 14 (AP).—A widespread purge of prominent members of the Polish communist party ha begun, diplomatic informants said today.

They made this report in summing up a three-day meeting of the Communist Polish United Workers Party, which ended Wednesday.

Their resume of the committee's decisions came under these headings:

1. The tightening of links binding individuals to the party.
2. The speeding of the communization of the country.
3. An intensification of attacks for political purposes upon the Western World.

These sources claimed that the election of Zenon Nowak as a member of the party's Politburo and as a joint secretary to the party's central committee was a signal that a purge was on.

Nowak's election to the Politburo, together with that of former Soviet Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, was announced Thursday night.

(In Berlin, meanwhile, the ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) Party of Soviet-occupied East Germany also called for an intensified purge of Titoists and Trotskyites in its ranks.

(It paralleled an apparently similar purge in Western Germany's Communist Party, whose No. 2 man, Kurt Mueller, was expelled from the party and later was arrested in East Germany on charges of being a foreign agent.)

Nowak—a veteran Communist—was formerly party secretary in charge of personnel in the vitally important industrial province of Upper Silesia and is now chief personnel officer at party headquarters.

He claimed he would be responsible for ridding the party of those deviationists from orthodox Stalinism who had been unmasked in the three-day meeting of the central committee.

Boleslaw Bierut, Poland's President and party chairman, called for increased vigilance and closer adherence to the party program.

Bierut maintained that reactionary circles in Poland and abroad were marked by services to American, British and French intelligence services.

Group Cancels Official's Talk As 'Apologia'

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—A speech by the United States Assistant High Commission of Germany was canceled today by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith because of disagreement with denazification policies advocated in the proposed address.

The assistant commissioner, Benjamin J. Buttenweiser, had been invited by the league to speak at its annual meeting on "The Reorientation of Germany."

The league's 35-member national commission withdrew the invitation a few hours before Buttenwieser was to have appeared. The action was taken after league officials had read a copy of the talk submitted to them in advance of its delivery.

Buttenwieser said he had received the cancellation notice from Meyer Steinbrink of New York, national chairman of the league, stating that, having read the advance copy of the address, "we cannot lend our platform to its delivery."

A statement issued by the league's national commission, said, in part:

". . . The general tenor of the speech, whose keynote is that 'Naziism in Germany—has been destroyed, never to rise again,' is an apologia for the limited job that has been done to denazify Germany, and gives aid and encouragement to those vicious elements in 'the new German nationalism' which Buttenwieser, himself, admits are reemerging today."

Buttenwieser told reporters he would stand on the statements contained in the speech he had prepared.

Buttenwieser's proposed address said that "justice and ethics require that the penitent be received back into the fold of society and be permitted to function as a member of his community.

He said many former Nazis hold public positions in western Germany.

Atom Bomb Sharing Discussion Stresses Use in Troop Tactics

By The Associated Press

Informal American discussion of supplying atomic weapons to other Atlantic Pact allies is concerned with the use of such weapons against troops rather than in long-distance "strategic" raids behind the lines.

This tactical use of atomic force is a new and untried phase of warfare that may prove to be of enormous importance.

Military planners here are concerned with producing the cheapest and strongest possible defenses for western Europe—and the United States.

The weapons these authorities have in mind, according to responsible informants, are those which could be employed in direct, tactical support of western European ground forces that would inevitably bear the first blows of any Soviet attack.

A clew to what the planners presumably have in mind is to be found in unofficial reports that the United States has produced relatively small atomic bombs. These bombs are said to be light enough to be carried by jet fighter-bombers.

Under the grand strategy being worked out by the military chiefs of the North Atlantic Treaty nations, the United States in the opening phase of any conflict would have primary responsibility for strategic bombing against production centers and transportation networks of an enemy.

Another part of the secret defense plans—about which some general facts are publicly known—places primary responsibility for protection of western Europe in the first phase of a conflict on the western European nations themselves.

So far this program calls only for nonatomic, conventional weapons. Under the law, in fact, those are all that can be delivered.

The problem, officials said, is this:

If the western European armies are to have maximum power against a potential enemy armed with atomic weapons, will they also require atomic weapons?

Eventually the problem is expected to require a policy decision by the State and Defense Departments, in the form of a recommendation to President Truman.

Speculatively, some informed officials say the United States could take either of two lines of action:

1. The President could ask Congress to modify the law to permit him to supply atomic weapons to North Atlantic Treaty powers. This would undoubtedly kick up a major row at the Capitol, particularly as respects the security of America's atomic secrets.

2. The American armed forces, with the President's approval, could develop special combat units trained in the use of atomic weapons and assign those units to duty with the fighting forces in western Europe.

Dulles Asserts U. S. Is Losing In Cold War

By the United Press

John Foster Dulles, special State Department consultant, yesterday asserted that the United States is losing the cold war to Russia and has been for the last four or five years.

"We have made some gains in some areas," he said, but "in the net balance I think Russian communism has been winning."

The Republican foreign policy spokesman, recently named assistant to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also said the breach in the bipartisan foreign policy was due to the Democrats' belief—after the 1948 elections—that they could "get along without much Republican help."

Dulles made the statements in a radio interview with the Gannett News Service. He also said:

1. The United States does not "necessarily" face war, since the Russians can get everything they want with the cold war.

2. The Far East was lost because the Soviets have had a program for 25 years that was aimed at the conquest of China and other Oriental nations. They have used their "best political minds" while the United States was content to "drift" in the belief China always would be friendly.

3. Marshall Plan aid to Europe may have to be continued after the program ends in 1952, but the amount "should be and can be drastically reduced."

4. On the basis of "my personal contacts," there are no disloyal employes in the State Department.

Dulles said Russia has made "great gains" in the cold war everywhere except in western Europe and "we still have grave problems to be solved there." As for the Far East, the Communists have used the cold war to win "victories far greater than any Japan would have won if they had won the shooting war."

Dulles was asked about public opinion polls which "have shown that the public generally is distrustful and suspicious of the way the State Department has conducted our foreign affairs."

He said this is partly due to the fact the United States is losing the cold war. He believed the responsibility for "what has gone wrong" has roots "pretty far back," but the people are looking for "scapegoats."

"I think efforts to put all the responsibility on one or two people in the State Department might, perhaps, be an effort to find a scapegoat for misfortunes which have causes elsewhere," he said.

Communist Judges Call Stalin Award To Writer Mistake

Moscow, May 14 (AP).—The Stalin Prize Committee for Literature and Art has asked the Council of Ministers of the U. S. S. R., the Russian Cabinet, to annul one of its 1950 awards.

The work in question is entitled "From the History of Public and Philosophical Thought of Azerbaijan in the Nineteenth Century," by Azerbaijani writer Gaidar Guseinov.

An announcement said the committee, after considering proposals advanced by Azerbaijani public organizations, had decided the award was a mistake. The statement said Guseinov's work was written from mistaken political and theoretical positions and in particular distorted the role of Shamil, a rebel against Russia in what is now the Aberbaijan S. S. R.

The committee statement pointed out that Shamil had worked with the Turks and British in a rebellion which represented the desires of their countries to annex parts of the Russian Caucasus.

Iceland's Polio Rate Leads World; U. S. 3d

Geneva, Switzerland, May 14 (U.P.).—Iceland had the world's highest poliomyelitis rate in 1949 with 494.9 cases reported per 100,000 of population, the World Health Organization said today. Sweden was second with 37.1 cases per 100,000 and the United States third with 28.4, the WHO said in its first polio incidence review since 1935.

Troops Will Stay in Germany

ceed to conclusion of a treaty of peace with Germany," the Western ministers said.

"In the present situation of Europe supreme authority must remain in the hands of the Allied powers," they added.

The occupation regime, it was stated, is imposed on Germany "by the consequences of the division of Germany and of the international position: until this situation is modified it must be retained in accordance with the common interests of Germany and of Europe."

But at the same time the ministers declared their intention to draw Germany into the circle of western Europe and when that situation has been fully reached she should be liberated from controls to which she is still subject and accorded her sovereignty to the maximum extent compatible with the basis of the occupation regime."

The pace of the lifting of controls, the declaration said, would depend on the degree of cooperation of the Bonn regime, the progress of the German people toward "true democracy" and the extent to which the Allies are satisfied their own security is safeguarded.

The three ministers refused to revise the present occupation statute until the appointed time this fall.

But with a view to relaxing controls progressively, they agreed to set up a study group in London. The group will make recommendations for eliminating the major practical inconveniences to Germany and her neighbors arising from the continuing technical state of war.

Outside the conference, it was reported authoritatively, the three ministers were near agreement on two problems:

1. Lifting the ban on foreign investments in Germany and unblocking of foreign accounts.

2. Relaxation of the State Department's blacklist of items which cannot be shipped to eastern Europe, ond thus aiding East-West trade.

6 Supersonic Speed Planes Are Listed by Trade Journal

By the United Press

Six different airplanes, including two United States Air Force experimental fighters, have flown faster than the speed of sound, American Aviation magazine reported today.

The trade publication listed 37 planes that it said are the fastest in the world outside Russia. Twenty-five were made in this country, 10 in Britain, one in Canada and one in France.

According to this tabulation, there is as yet no supersonic airplane in production, although the Air Force's F-86 Sabre can reach sonic speed if pressed.

The speed of sound is 760 miles an hour at sea level and falls off gradually to 660 m.p.h. at 35,000 feet, remaining constant above that. Modern aircraft speeds are expressed as a percentage of sonic speed. Thus the F-86's normal top speed is 95 percent of the speed of sound at whatever altitude it is flying.

The supersonic airplanes listed by American Aviation and their top speeds were:

The Bell X-1 rocket ship, 148 percent of sonic speed; Douglas D-558-2 Skyrocket, 140 percent; Consolidated Vultee XF-92 Delta (triangle-shaped) wing plane, 110 percent; British De Havilland DH108 (which recently crashed), 104 percent.

These all are research planes used to gather data for design of future supersonic types.

The magazine also said the Air Force's North American XF-93 has flown at 110 percent of sonic speed and its McDonnell XF-88 at 105 percent. They are experimental long-range fighters and may go into production.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

A CERTAIN TYPE of morality, with which we became only too familiar in the 1919-1933 era, holds that whatever is or can be abused by the few, should be removed from the reach of all. While I yield to no man (the rhetoric is the Capitol Hill influence) in my denunciation of overindulgence, I am firmly convinced that a kindly Nature has made available to man few things that can contribute as much to his comfort and well-being as alcohol. Man has, of course, used his own ingenuity to improve on Nature's basic fermentation process, just as through his own self-developed skill, man has adapted crude oil to a complexity of modern usages. Alcohol, as we know it today, can be made into delicious beverages which have the power to relax and soothe and warm the restless spirit of man; to soften his mood; to bring him to that gentle and forgiving state of mind known as tolerance. In my opinion, only music works comparable miracles. And the true appreciation of music, like the true appreciation of alcohol or good food or a fine cigar, is not a gift, but the reward for patient study of the art of civilized living. And highly moral.

steaks! steaks! steaks!

We are fortunate to have, at Parchey's (you know, at 19th and K, N.W.) two extremely gifted men who have through years of experience, become absolute masters of the civilized art of preparing cocktails. Luther Hennighan, who presides over our bar by day, and Al Gray, whose genial countenance beams across the mahogany by night, make, in the opinion of more learned connoisseurs than myself, the most delectable Martinis and Manhattans in these parts. For the former, they use only Fleishmann's, "America's First Gin," and a brand of Dry Vermouth that after exhaustive searching, we found to be the best for our purpose. Do you like your Martini with an olive . . . or do you prefer a super-dry Gibson, with an onion? Our olives are the specially imported, pitted kind; tender and tasty . . . our onions little gems of crisp flavor. Manhattans we make with a famous Glenmore whiskey, "Wed in the Wood" and from Kentucky, and for which we pay a premium price. But you, honored reader, do not. You pay only 50c for a full, 3-ounce "Jumbo" Manhattan or Martini at Parchey's; only $1.00 for a 6-ounce "Collosal." And it's served to you icy-cold in a frosted decanter, which we were first to introduce to Washington. A most fitting prelude to your meal at Parchey's. Try one.

steaks! steaks! steaks!

I love gossip . . . who doesn't? Especially the nice kind of gossip that Mark Evans and Bill Jenkins have spread about our place of business over the air waves. I heartily recommend that you listen to these famous broadcasters . . . and promise that you can frequently see them in person at a Parchey table, if you come in often enough! And in case you have missed his TV Sports broadcasts, Jim Gibbons is also one of our "regulars." Eats sirloin incidentally.

"What, exactly," writes a friend, "is a filet mignon? The one I had at your establishment was so delicious that I determined to ask you its antecedants. Please enlighten." Delighted! First of all, the filet mignon is the true heart of the tenderloin, which is (as its name suggests) the tenderest portion of the beef. But there is a difference in tenderloin, just as there is a difference in cattle. Our tenderloin, for instance, is specially bought in Kansas City and Chicago, and is cut only from steers that have been pampered and fattened on golden corn in mid-Western feeding pens. It is labeled "U. S. Choice," the highest practical grade obtainable. Our buyers examine this tenderloin minutely, check it for texture, color and density, and then take the extra precaution of seeing that the "covering" of fat on each strip is at least half-an-inch thick, and silken-smooth. We cut the filets ourselves from these superb tenderloin strips, making sure that each is delicately marbelized with thin strips of creamy-white suet. As your filet mignon broils, juice from this marbelling bubbles through the solid meat, endowing it with luscious flavor and generating the sumptuous rich juices that protect it from the searing heat and yet allow it to reach the exact peak of perfect flavor for which you called! A noble cut, indeed, the Parchey filet mignon, and one that you deserve to enjoy this very evening! Do it! The address: 19th St. at K, N.W.

51 U. S. Groups Unite To Fight Subversives

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—A new national organization formed to combat communism today set as its first goal the bolstering of Government machinery for prosecuting defendants charged with subversive activities.

Dr. Dan A. Poling of New York, editor of the Christian Century, was named permanent chairman of the All-American Conference to Combat Communism.

The founding sessions yesterday and today were led by George N. Craig, Brazil, Ind., national commander, American Legion. Craig said 51 organizations representing a combined membership of 80 million persons participated.

Consideration of means to protect Government witnesses from economic repercussions of testifying at Communist trials was proposed by Frank Guildtti, La Mesa, Calif., National Association of Evangelical Churches. F. Joseph Donohue, special assistant U. S. Attorney General, said six of 10 Government witnesses in the trial of Harry Bridges, recently convicted of concealing his Communist Party connections in applying for United States citizenship, are jobless because of their testimony. They were members of Bridges' Longshoremen's Union and have been kept from getting jobs by union officials, he declared.

The conference authorized a $50,000 budget for immediate activities. Poling told the group its organization "marks the first dynamic new unity of the American people to carry the fight to communism everywhere in the United States."

National vice chairmen include the Rev. John A. Cronin, National Catholic Welfare Conference, and Lewis Hines, American Federation of Labor, both of Washington, D. C. The executive council chosen includes Rear Admiral Charles S. Stephenson (USN, retired), and Gerard M. Cahill, both of Washington, D. C. Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) was named an associate member.

The group seeks establishment of a grass roots educational program; exposure of Communist activities; counter-propaganda; establishment of a "Know Your America" week, and other measures.

Major Kelly's wife and four children will live at 3071 Edgewood ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Committee Asks Probe Of Bus Fare Boosts

The National Citizens' Committee Against Forced Listening said yesterday it has urged Chairman Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.) of the Senate District Committee to initiate a "no holds barred" investigation of the fare increases granted by the Public Utilities Commission.

The organization also asked Senator Neely to review "the ancient statute under which the commission now functions.

"The time has come," the committee said, "when it would be very desirable to have a complete overhauling of the 35-year-old statute under which the public interest of the Washington citizenry as a whole is brushed aside."

Polio Pamphlets Distributed to 140,000 in Schools

Warnings on poliomyelitis, telling what to do if symptoms of the disease appear, are being distributed to 140,000 school children and college students in the District area, it was announced yesterday.

The four-page pamphlets are provided by the D. C. Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, made possible by the March of Dimes. The folders are going to children in public, private and parochial schools, with an admonition to take them home to parents, and also to college students.

They contain a list of symptoms to watch, precautions to avoid infection, and a heartening message that many persons recover from the disease without permanent paralysis or injury. Mrs. Channing Walker, chairman of the Women's Committee of the D. C. Chapter, arranged the distribution.

Millionth Pilgrim Is Received by Pope

Rome, May 14 (U.P.).—The number of persons received in audience by Pope Pius XII since the 1950 Holy Year began December 24 passed the one million mark today.

The one millionth pilgrimage was not identified individually. He was one of about 30,000 persons who crowded intot St. Peter's basilica for one of the mass audiences that have brought more Catholics into the presence of the Pope than ever before in history.

Shun Appeasement, War Mothers Told

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) declared today that "our postwar blunders and losses" should teach us appeasement is not the way to world peace.

Senator Dworshak addressed 2500 persons assembled in the amphitheater of Arlington Cemetery for the twenty-sixth annual Mother's Day ceremonies of the American War Mothers.

Although the United Nation at times seems weak and ineffectual, the Senator said, "it still offers a mechanism for peace and we must support it."

He asserted that "in high places of Government, and in every segment of our national life, some men have given their primary allegiance to communism." The leadership of this Nation, he said, is being challenged by the tyranny of the Soviet Union. The Soviets, who ruled 170 million people a few years ago, he said, now hold in slavery more than 800 million people.

Senator Dworshak said we must recognize our individual responsibility to keep alive our heritage of freedom and our patriotism, for the sake of future generations.

Mrs. Gertrude Warner, national president of the American War Mothers, presented AWM distinguished service medals to Admiral Forres P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps. Each received a kiss from the War Mothers president.

The medals were given by Mrs. Warner, assisted by Mrs. W. L. Stevens, national chairman of arrangements, for the men of the Navy and Marine Corps who served in the war.

Murray Y. Poling, chief of the international technical cooperation section, Department of Commerce, told the War Mothers that Mother's Day should not be a day of mourning or a day to extend sympathy for bereavement, but a day to express the glory the name "mother" signifies.

He said the future of this country will not spring from our foreign policy, but from the hearts and souls of our mothers, who guide the "greatest institution of the world, the American family."

After the ampitheater ceremonies, members of various participating organizations laid wreaths at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, passing through an "aisle of honor" formed by Gold Star Mothers..

Miss Betty Jo Booker, student at Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, and Arthur Buttler, of Sun Valley, Ida., sang selections.

Mrs. Rebecca Burgess Bullock, wife of the Rev. George O. Bullock, pastor of the Third Baptist Church, and mother of eight, was honored as "Mother of the Year" for the Washington area by the American Mothers Committee.

In presenting the citation at an 11 a. m. service, Mrs. Anna A. Hedgeman, assistant to the Federal Security Agency Administrator, praised Mrs. Bullock as farsighted and energetic.

Mrs. Bullock is the mother of the late Dr. George S. Bullock, clinical assistant in neurology and psychiatry at Howard University Medical School and Freedmen's Hospital, who was recently killed in an automobile accident. Two other sons are physicians, in Washington and Philadelphia, while a fourth is a freshman at Dartmouth College. Three daughters are teachers in the District public schools and a fourth is a social worker in New York.

St. John's to Hold Father-and-Son Dinner Thursday

The fourth annual father-son dinner conducted by The Men of St. John's in honor of their sons who attend St. John's College will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday at the Hotel Statler.

A reception for guests will take place at 6:30 p. m. Among those honored will be Frank Pace, jr., Secretary of the Army; Luther (Bus) Ham, sports editor of The Washington Post and promoter of the annual Celebrities Golf Tournament here; and, in absentia, Bing Crosby.

The Men of St. John's will present a check for $2500 to Brother Clement, president of the school, for financial assistance to students.

Rev. Mr. Catlin to Be Rector Of Christ Church, Kensington

The Rev. Gerald H. Catlin has accepted a call to become rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Kensington, Md. He will begin his work there on August 1.

Rev. Mr. Catlin

Since 1941 he has been rector of Epiphany parish, which includes Epiphany Church, Forestville, and Christ Chapel, Clinton, Md. By action of the annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Washington last week, the two congregations were separated and Epiphany became a separate church and Christ a diocesan mission.

Christ Church, Kensington, has been without a rector since the Rev. Lyman B. Greaves resigned in November to accept a pulpit in New Jersey.

Mr. Catlin is a native Washingtonian. He was graduated from George Washington University before entering the DuBose Memorial Church Training School.

Tree to Be Planted Today in Ceremony at Cathedral

A 22-foot scarlet oak tree will be planted at 8:30 a. m. today as part of the Washington Cathedral's observation of the rogation season.

During this season, which includes the three days preceding Ascension Thursday, it is customary in the Anglican communion to ask the blessing of God upon the crops of the earth.

The tree-planting ceremony will begin with a dedication service in the great crossing of the Cathedral, attended by about 800 students from St. Alban's School for Boys and the National Cathedral School for Girls.

From the cathedral, the procession will go down the Pilgrim Steps, cross the amphitheater and up the hill, where the tree will be planted within view of St. Alban's school.

Meredith Price, president of the St. Albans senior class, and Jean King, president of the cathedral school senior class, will plant the tree, which was given to the cathedral by James Sheldon of New York.

Suit by Denham Likely if Ousted

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Any move by President Truman to dismiss Robert N. Denham as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board will be fought in the courts, a source close to Denham disclosed yesterday.

Dismissal of Denham has been predicted without official confirmation since Thursday, when the Senate, led by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), voted to reject President Truman's Reorganization Plan No. 12.

The plan would have abolished the autonomous office of NLRB general counsel and transfered its functions to the five-man NLRB board.

Labor union leaders, who had pressed hard for approval of Plan No. 12, are expected to renew their attacks on Denham, whom they charge to be prejudiced in favor of the employers in labor relations disputes.

The White House had been bombarded with union petitions for Denham's dismissal for weeks before the President sent his reorganization plan to Capitol Hill. During this period, the President was asked at a press conference whether he had the power to fire a Senate-confirmed appointee whose term had not yet expired. Mr. Truman answered unequivocally that as Chief Executive he had the right to fire anyone whom he hired.

However, this view is not shared by legal experts friendly to Denham. They say that according to Supreme Court decisions the President has no power or right to dismiss an official of the Executive Department who has been appointed to a quasi-judicial post. Denham, they aver, has such a semi-judicial office, in that he has sole determination over which Taft-Hartley complaints to investigate and which to prosecute before the five-member NLRB.

Friends of Denham say any attempt to fire him before his term is up late in 1951 would not only result in a court fight, but also in something like total confusion so far as NLRB machinery is concerned.

Everybody agrees there is plenty of confusion as it is in the operations of NLRB due to the conflicting philosophies and often the actions of the general counsel and the board. But the present snafu would be child's play to what would happen if Denham is ousted before his four-year appointment is up, according to persons close to the general counsel.

The pro-Denham advocates say that any replacement for Denham would fail to win needed approval of the Senate—which thus far has balked the President in every move to modify in any way the workings of the Taft-Hartley Act. Meanwhile, they claim, no "acting general counsel" could fill the statutory general counsel's post for more than a month under terms of the law.

Renewed talk of Denham's dismissal, incidentally, has caused the general counsel to change his mind about the possibility of resigning, according to Denham's friends. They say Denham simply will not quit under fire.

Foes of Denham, also backed by expert legal advice, declare the President has unquestionable right to fire Denham—and charge that Denham has even been egging the President on to do so. His opponents point to an article by the general counsel, appearing last week in Factory Management and Maintenance, a McGraw-Hill publication.

The article, entitled "Don't Let NLRB Repeal Taft-Hartley," accuses President Truman point-blank of proposing Reorganization Plan No. 12 in order to make a "flank attack" on the Taft-Hartley Act.

President Truman has stated, officially, via the Bureau of the Budget, that his only reason for abolishing Denham's post was in the interests of efficiency, in line with general suggestions of the Hoover Commission. Denham's charge of "flank attack," his opponents say, is tantamount to a subordinate calling his boss a liar.

Denham's opponents insist the President can find plenty of excuses for firing Denham on the ground that the NLRB chief counsel has "incited" litigation against the NLRB by employers. A specific accusation along this line, in the Haleston Drug Case, has been made by Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., (Dem.-Lib., N. Y.), in a speech printed in the Congressional Record of May 10.

Married at 14

Boy, 17, Seeks To Divorce Costa Rican

Divorce from the pretty Costa Rican girl he married when he was 14 is sought by Robert Warren Magee, 17, of Bethesda, Md.

Mrs. Magee

Suit for divorce has been filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., on behalf of the boy by Mrs. Martha L. Lucas, an aunt, of 7 Verne st., Bethesda, since he still is a minor in the eyes of the law.

The youth is the son of Warren Magee, 300 Newport ave., Westgate, Bethesda, who was defense counsel several years ago for former Representative Andrew J. May of Kentucky, in the May-Garsson fraud trial.

The girl is Mary Ann Vargas Magee, daughter of Dr. Oscar Vargas, formerly scientific translator at the Pan-American Union and now director general of the Health and Sanitary Ministry of Costa Rica, in San Jose.

The petition filed in court says that the youth was 14 at the time he and Miss Vargas eloped to Greenville, S. C., in August, 1947, and that Miss Vargas then was about 18. The suit contends the youth was "incapable of entering into a marriage relationship" because of his age and that the couple lived together as man and wife for less than a week and never established a home. The suit alleges the girl deserted him.

The youth was attending Woodrow Wilson High School and Miss Vargas the Immaculata Seminary when they eloped. They were found in Florida. The youth now is employed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the Wisconsin ave. store. The Vargas family resided at 3212 Wisconsin ave. nw., when they were in Washington.

Democrats' Council To Meet in Arlington

Designed to broaden the base of the county's Democratic Party, according to Democratic officials, the Council will have more than 200 members, appointed by precinct committeemen. It will make policy recommendations to the county's Democratic executive committee.

Presidential Advisers

The nomination of Leon Keyserling as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and successor to Dr. Nourse is evidence that President Truman prefers an adviser who is willing and eager to defend Administration policies before congressional committees rather than an objective consultant. It also indicates that the President thinks he can depend on Mr. Keyserling to supply economic arguments to support those policies. Foundation for this belief is afforded by the zeal with which the new chairman urged adoption of the President's anti-inflation program after inflation had ceased to be a menace and by his recent eloquent defense of free enterprise which, we suspect, was intended to propitiate business groups.

Frankly, it is Mr. Keyserling's facility in shifting his position and his ability to discourse endlessly about the conditions required to maintain an economy of full employment without presenting a positive program for its attainment that gives us pause. For these qualities make it virtually impossible to rely on him to follow any consistent economic approach to solution of major problems. Since John D. Clark, Mr. Keyserling's running mate, has also used his position to further adoption of Administration policies, Dr. Roy Blough, the third member, who is a new appointee, will probably either have to go along with the majority or else find himself in the difficult position of Dr. Nourse, who insisted that economic advisers should remain aloof from politics. Dr. Blough is, however, exceptionally well qualified for his new advisory post. He served for a number of years as director of research of the Treasury's Tax Division and has acquired a deserved reputation as a sound, well-balanced thinker whose views about monetary and fiscal problems will make him a valuable addition to the council.

Aid For China

The Senate-House conferees agreed last week to earmark eight million dollars for famine relief in China out of the 94 million dollars of unexpended ECA balances for China. This is a response to a call of humanity which has never found America wanting. On this matter, as President Truman revealed in his speech at Laramie, there is not the slightest difference between Administration and Congress. Indeed, the Administration has long been trying to get into famine-stricken China on such an errand of mercy. As if the backwash of civil war were not bad enough, central China is in the grip of one of its periodical famines, and President Truman says it is the worst in a hundred years. How he comes to such an estimate only he knows. What is happening in inland China, particularly the Yangtze area, is unclear because of the lack of American consular representation or of news correspondents, though enough is known to warrant the feeling that extraordinary conditions of shortage and suffering prevail.

But the stark fact is that population is always pressing upon subsistence in China. According to the classic work on the subject, Mallory's China, Land of Famine, there has been a famine nearly every year in one or another of China's teeming provinces. "In fact," he says, "the normal death rate may be said to contain a constant famine factor." The Chinese themselves have a fatalistic acceptance of the tragedy of famine. All life seems to revolve around food, and that means that food is always short. The polite salutation on meeting a friend is not "How are you?" but "Have you eaten?" and there is a sense of belonging, in consequence, to the soil, not of the converse, which is unique. The Chinese think that famines are Nature's way of weeding out surplus population.

The Western view is quite different. Animated by the canon of Christian charity, relief to peoples in distress is a natural reaction, and missions of mercy have gone forth from American to the far ends of the earth. The Russians after the first World War, the Japanese after the great earthquake of 1923, the Chinese periodically—all these people have been succored out of American bounty.

There came a time, however, when the American Red Cross put up a warning finger against help in combating more or less normal famine conditions in China. This was in 1928. An appeal had been made to the Red Cross, a commission was sent out, and its report gave the grounds for refusing the appeal. The commission said that famines were endemic, but went further and concluded that the very Chinese acceptance of famine conditions prevented their amelioration. The report said:

> By far the greatest need in China today is the development of a consciousness on the part of the Chinese people respecting some of the fundamental causes of famine in their country. The people of China would give more thought to these underlying causes if they were obliged to assume responsibility for resulting relief needs, and any large measure of relief from outside sources cannot but retard the development of this public opinion, without which no real progress can be expected.

Still the Red Cross, the agency named in the congressional debate, would no doubt come to the rescue as the administering agent of Government money for relief of an extraordinary famine such as this, apparently, is.

Not only on charitable grounds should the effort to get into China be pursued. Friendship with the Chinese people stands in need of a demonstration after the misunderstanding that has developed among them as a result of American military intervention. Help might also pave the way for activity under the Point IV program, which, if restricted to rural rehabilitation, is "one of the greatest contributions we can make to the cause of freedom," as the President said. Let us energetically press this assistance upon the Chinese authorities in Peking, and make the offer known to the Chinese people. Soon the authorities may be in a dilemma—torn between America offering food and the Russians draining it out. Senator Knowland is entitled to great credit for his initiative in a matter which might have consequences of great benefit to both countries.

Reminding Mr. Truman

Doubtless the President is keeping in touch with the conferences of the foreign ministers in Europe. For they are fraught with vast significance for history. Now, since the announcement of the Schuman Plan, they have become momentous with promise, as well as with history. The promise is of the peaceful foundation of a Franco-German understanding and the sure start of unity in Europe. But by the same token the promise is of the success of the President's own policies. They are inseparable. Mr. Truman may go down in history as the President in whose term the Atlantic community was brought together in the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, and the North Atlantic Pact. If these policies succeed, he is assured of a niche among the great Presidents; if they fail, the reaction will be correspondingly severe. Nothing is more calculated to put them over the top than the political self-help that the Schuman initiative expresses. The gesture is an act of faith and courage, and, as shrewd observers on Capitol Hill note, is the outstanding example of European statesmanship since hostilities ceased.

What Schuman is doing, to repeat, is trying to achieve the aims of the Truman foreign policy. It must make the President feel immensely encouraged, and he would do well at the present juncture to make public his satisfaction, for such an expression would carry great weight and authority with the Europeans who are at last coming to grips with the problem of integrating Europe for peace and prosperity. All big concepts have small politics to contend with, and this is just as true in France and Germany as in America. The President has as much at stake as anybody, and now that Secretary Acheson has supported the Schuman Plan, an extra word of compliment from Mr. Truman to Mr. Schuman would be most heartening to the French and the Germans.

Those "Yes But Boys"

The Executive Committee of the United States Council of the International Chamber of Commerce has added its name to the lengthening list of opponents of ratification of the ITO charter. Consequently, it is now numbered among those "yes but boys" whom President Truman denounces as economic isolationists. ECA Administrator Hoffman is one of the group's most prominent trustees, and he will no doubt be surprised to hear that he is allied with a short-sighted selfish group that "would cut down international trade, force down living standards of other free peoples and ours, too, and let the Communists take over." Perhaps Mr. Truman will be surprised, too, to hear that Mr. Hoffman is a very lukewarm supporter of the charter. Although he dissented from the executive committee position, Mr. Hoffman admitted that he was concerned about various provisions of the charter and realized that there were "very valid objections" to it.

As the council committee points out, many political changes have occurred affecting countries that participated in the drafting of the charter, making it obsolete and unsatisfactory as the basis for an international trade organization. It considers the charter dangerous, because it gives priority to centralized governmental planning of foreign trade, leaves the way open for discriminatory trade practices, and in effect commits all ITO members to state planning for full employment. Another strong argument advanced against ratification is that under the terms of the charter, other nations may discriminate against this country while it is extending most favored nation treatment to all ITO members. Adherence to the provisions of the charter would also make it impossible for the United States to follow independent policies to encourage multilateral trading.

We agree with the council's view that the ITO charter does not meet the needs of the present or the immediate future. Furthermore, the hands of the Administration are full trying to create conditions at home favorable to trade expansion and to encourage other countries to abandon restrictive trade policies. Until more progress has been made in eliminating import controls and obstructive exchange regulations, an international trade organization would be comparatively impotent. The chances for establishment of a strong and permanent organization of this kind will be much better if we delay action until the world's trading nations are economically stronger and politically more secure.

As an alternative to ratification of the charter, the council members suggest that the United States take the initiative in establishing a commission on commercial policy under the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations that would be a meeting place for debating important issues "without incurring the liability of the existing charter." It is a proposal well worth consideration.

Campaign Of Truth

The communique issued at London by the foreign ministers of the three big western powers underlines the need for joint efforts in what President Truman has called "a great campaign of truth." "Faith in freedom should not be taken for granted, but should be built into a dynamic force," the foreign ministers say, "and steps should be taken to increase public understanding of the exact nature, methods and dangers of the threat to its existence." From the State Department come reports that a new working agreement on counter-propaganda is in the making between the United States and Great Britain and perhaps with other North Atlantic Treaty countries. Such steps are long overdue. Since the object of the free world in the cold war is to protect itself against the encroachments of communism without resort to arms, harmony of effort in the informational field is of inestimable importance.

One of the immediate aims of the British-American negotiations, which Assistant Secretary of State Barrett hopes to bring to a head on a visit to London this week, is to increase from 73 to 100 the transmitters through which western information can be beamed upon the iron curtain countries. Additional power as well as new transmitters is needed to prevent the Soviet Union from "jamming" the Voice of America and the British programs. Plans also call for British-American committees to exchange information and prevent conflicts in foreign policy broadcasts. These are important steps toward integration, but they seem to us inadequate. Nations that are in the process of unifying their military defenses, must necessarily bring their informational services into harmony if their joint efforts are to attain maximum effectiveness.

Lack of harmony in the free-world propaganda broadcast to the countries behind the iron curtain suggests lack of agreement as to what the basic policies of the free world are. It is not to be supposed, of course, that any one unified agency could speak exclusively for all the diverse peoples in the free world. But so far as the foreign policy of the Atlantic community of powers is concerned, the need for concerted efforts to enlighten people now in darkness is obvious. No nation, as we recently noted on this page, can effectively carry on such a campaign single-handed.

As for libraries and documentary films, the American people have scarcely begun to realize the possibilities of preaching the doctrine of freedom by these means. Perhaps there is less necessity for international cooperation in establishing libraries abroad and making available informational films, but the spectacle of free countries working together to promote the type of education that makes for peace is always impressive. Joint efforts to promote education about the free world ought to be vigorously promoted in the spirit of the foreign ministers' conference.

Arlington Police

The recent disgraceful episodes involving several members of the Arlington police department add importance to the investigation just launched by the county board. Not long ago two policemen were caught breaking into stores and another was convicted of assault in a private home. During the course of the latter trial, it was brought out that certain policemen made a regular practice of drinking in their cars in public after work. There is no implication that this conduct typifies the majority of policemen, or that there is dishonesty in the department. But such incidents do reflect seriously on both efficiency and morale.

Credit for pushing the investigation belongs to the Arlington Sun, which protested the foot-dragging of the county manager and county board. Specifically, the board will probe into the political appointment of policemen, poor administration, low pay and its effect on recruiting, inadequate training and discipline, inadequate qualifications of officers and the question whether the force itself is too small.

In part, the trouble is evolutionary. Arlington has grown phenomenally from a loosely organized county to what is tantamount to a city of 125,000 persons spread over a large area. Yet the police department is essentially an overgrown sheriff's office, trying to perform the duties of a city department with only about 80 men. In Washington, the ratio of police to population is several times greater. Perhaps the most compelling need of the three-man investigating commission is professional help from an expert in police matters. Without such help, it is hard to see how the commission can do a thorough job—for that job ought to be not only to get the facts, but also to recommend constructive measures for giving Arlington an adequate and efficient police department.

Truth To France

As a free and disinterested French citizen, I wish to thank and express my approval of President Truman's truth campaign.

There are many of us in France, you know, who want to live and work at peace with everyone, especially those of us who sacrificed so much at the Marne, Verdun, as well as the heights of Meuse and Montfaucon of Argonne with Pershing's troops; in the Ardennes and Dunkirk in 1939-40, as at Bastogne in 1944-45; at Birkhein and in Alsace and again in the Nazi camps.

It is vital for saving the peace to carry out a program of ideological propaganda to combat the Soviet propaganda, which is treacherous and well organized. If you do not restore equilibrium by telling the French, and the people of Europe, the truth, by means of radio, pamphlets, and posters, giving them proof that the Russians are the wrongdoers and war criminals, in 1950 as in 1939 with Hitler, then these rhetorical experts will gain on you, with the help of treachery and hypocritical lies.

Their fifth column in France demands a better standard of living for the workers on one hand, while it sabotages production by strikes to create the anarchy desired by Moscow.

The great mass of French people are only partially aware of the truth of the Marshall Plan, which is denounced by the fifth column as a business profitable to the United States alone. The people are still only partially aware of the truth about Soviet armaments since the fifth column would have them believe the arms sent by the United States would be the sole cause of a (coming) war.

This bolshevist minority, aided by certain authorities who occupy positions of authority in the French government, makes too much noise and commotion, and it is high time that the United States, which desires peace, get tough with the political clans who play with fire in favoring or tolerating communism.

Suggest to the French and European syndicates that they send delegations of workers to the United States and to Russia. Then one will see the results. A. BOURSIN.

Tax Burden

I am informed by the Tax Foundation, a research organization which studies Government spending and taxes, that the hidden taxes paid by American citizens are considerably heavier than the income taxes paid. These hidden taxes levied on things we purchase amount to $700 per family this year. The Tax Foundation has discovered about 150 taxes levied on the manufacture and sale of a woman's hat, 116 taxes on a man's suit of clothes, 151 taxes on a loaf of bread, and at least 100 taxes on a dozen eggs.

In 1929, the total United States budget was about 3 billion dollars. In 1949, just 20 years later, the Federal Government alone expended $43,500,000,000. Twenty years ago the Federal Government had less than 600,000 civilian employes. Today there are more than two million on the Government payroll.

Both rich and poor are being taxed out of existence, and every citizen is being gradually reduced to the level of a Government dependent, and as former Secretary of State Mr. Brynes said recently, we soon will be pulling the oars of statism as galley slaves unless present tendencies toward statism are checked.

Slap at Welfare

Arthur Godfrey on a recent broadcast commented on his sad experience in trying to help out an able bodied but somewhat indolent fellow with a family, who couldn't keep any job, or didn't care to. The final stroke, it seemed, was when the man bought an automobile out of the money extended him by Godfrey; and embittered but enlightened, Godfrey told him to go his own way, which turned out to be to a relief organization.

Godfrey then related how he heard from this relief organization who said that they were giving the man and his family $59 a week, and asked Godfrey how much he wanted to contribute toward this sum.

Now I don't know what relief organization he is talking about, but I do know that social workers are doing fine work all over the country. It is also my understanding that the budget to take care of the needy families in Washington, D. C., is inadequate to cover the high price of food per family today.

Godfrey apparently comments on anything, political or non-political in the guise of comedy, and in this instance insinuated that relief is a racket. This does a great deal of harm to welfare organizations, which need our support. E. JOHNSON.

Atlantic Union

Secretary Acheson's participation in the North Atlantic Conference indicates the growing importance of the Atlantic Union Resolution (S. Con. Res. 57) calling for exploration of the possibilty of federating the democracies.

Support of this resolution was unanimously indorsed by Disabled American Veterans Federal Chapter No. 1 at its April meeting. This support reflects our conviction that totalitarian aggression is now threatening our American freedom and ideals, for the preservation of which a heavy price was paid in two world wars.

It is undeniable that we must unite the democracies so as to assemble an unbalance of power strong enough to thwart those who would deprive us of our way of life.

Although the Atlantic Union Resolution has received extensive favorable comment, action is dependent on citizens urging their Congressmen to bring this vital bill to the floor for debate.

"Good Police Work"

There is no pleasure for your "informed readers" in such a fatuous statement as you made in your May 8 editorial, "Good Police Work." By mere accident the Lansburgh slayer comes into police custody and confesses. Is that "good police work"?

We still have the finest collection agency in the country for a police force. Tickets they can hand out—but crime detection, never. Don't follow trends—make 'em. C. B. WHITE.

Religion In The Home

I would like to comment on the May 10 column by Malvina Lindsay on the youthful criminal.

The school system, the parents, and society are mentioned as being to blame for the young people who are tempted to commit crime. This is true, indeed, but the largest share of blame must fall on the parents. When most parents are all they should be, the school system will be improved a great deal. And parents with their children form the bulk of our society.

I read that the Tyler family were "irregular" churchgoers and therefore it is easy to assume that it was not their habit to assemble at any time of the day or evening to say the family Rosary. A recent survey revealed that a very large number of Protestants, Catholics, and Jews merely "accept" religion and that it means very little to them.

A group of children were given psychological tests in honesty and then instructed in what is "right" and what is "wrong." Then they were tested again with very little improvement in their "honesty' ratings. However, after these same children were given religious instruction they showed amazing improvement when tested.

Only a small part of the blame for crimes by youth can be laid to anything other than a lack of religion in the home. Parents do not put first things first. They sometimes work too hard to provide things or advantages that may be good, bad or indifferent for the child's real welfare. If we do a good job of teaching our children to love God, we won't have to worry much about them breaking His laws when they are 18—or 80.

"The Bizarre Sisters"

I have read the favorable comments in your review of April 30, on the new novel The Bizarre Sisters, which is based on a scandal in one of our leading Virginia families by the name of Randolph. I think the criticism was well expressed in terms of praise for the authors' skill in handling their theme.

It is not my privilege or intention personally to defend the prestige of any of the Randolphs, because that is their prerogative if they choose to take advantage of it.

However, I do reserve the right to defend the prestige and memory of our great American statesmen when advertising the misdeeds of their family connections. It would be interesting to know the true objectives of persons writing from the secret family documents of American statesmen. As a rule, the general public can find out about the lives of all of our great men from the writings of professional and unbiased biographers who do not find it necessary or pleasant to color up the records of great statesmen with the mistakes of their relatives. It is only natural to question the research privilege for other purposes than to keep the public properly informed. H. C. H.

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Schuman's Big Move

LONDON.—The temptation is almost irresitible to stress the comic aspects of French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's proposal for the economic union of the Franco-German coal and steel complexes. Surprise plays precisely the part in international relationships as the deception of husbands in French farces. Schuman's vitally important move has surprised and upset enough people to provide laughs for a month.

In brief, the idea of a French initiative at this time was Foreign Minister Schuman's. The idea of taking the initiative by offering economic union of the French coal and steel complexes, with the British and other continental producers coming in if they choose, was the idea of the great wartime administrator, Jean Monnet. In the preparatory phase, absolute secrecy was the rule, for the very good reason that the "Comite des Forges," the vastly powerful association of French steel masters, would have stopped the project if they had heard of it in time. Until the American delegation reached Paris, no one knew what was afoot except Monnet, Schuman, French Premier Georges Bidault, of course, and two or three members of Schuman's personal staff. Even the French High Commissioner to Germany, Andre Francois Poncet, was left unconsulted, probably because of his long-standing connections with the Comite des Forges.

At their first meeting, Schuman mentioned the project to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, but with so little emphasis or drama that Acheson did not grasp its significance. The cat only really came out of the bag the next day. A member of the American delegation urged members of Schuman's staff to be more constructive, remarking that France had almost abandoned the role of a great power by taking so negative an attitude about Germany. The Schuman-Monnet plan was then fully explained to the excited Americans, just as it was about to be presented to the French Cabinet.

Immediately after the French Cabinet meeting the plan was publicly revealed. The reactions of all parties were instantaneous, vivid and extremely instructive.

BOTH THE Comite des Forges and the Communists were purple with fury, for obvious reasons. German Socialist leader Kurt Schumacher was anything but pleased, since the French proposal three-quarters ruined his role as the defender of a persecuted Germany in the forthcoming debate on Germany's entry into the Strasbourg Council of Europe. Also very far from delighted were the British.

Irritation at being surprised had its part in the British reaction. Basically, however, the Foreign Office has always distrusted European combinations as being unpredictable and perhaps phony. At the same time, Sir Stafford Cripps' planners have always wished to avoid involvement with the unplanned and self-indulgent economies of the Continent.

These British attitudes, in turn, were never really challenged during the whole period when the French insisted they would have no dealings with the Germans without the British joining them. While the French rejected the initiative, the British only had to hold back, too, and nothing happened. But the moment the French began talking directly to the Germans, as they now have done in effect, the whole British position was found to be flanked.

ALL THE PREVIOUS efforts to achieve any kind of real European union including Germany had already failed. Hence, before this meeting the State Department had, in effect, abandoned European union in favor of Atlantic union. The new plan was to form a high council of the Atlantic powers. To this purely political organ of the Atlantic Pact the Germans were to be admitted. They were only to be excluded, for the time being, from the Atlantic Pact military machinery.

The State Department plan unfortunately met with almost insurmountable opposition when it was disclosed at the preparatory talks here. The French and British sharply objected that the Atlantic Pact was primarily a military alliance to which the Germans could not possibly be admitted, even on the political level, at this time. Yet Dean Acheson was unwilling to go to Congress with the alternative plan for a purely political alliance of the Atlantic powers and Germany outside the Atlantic Pact.

Thus all was on dead center when Foreign Minister Schuman brought his cat out of the bag. The pooling of control of French and German heavy industry, plus early revision of the German occupation statute to let Germany sit as an equal in the Council of Europe, will fully meet the requirements of High Commissioner McCloy. With varying degrees of reluctance, the British and other continental powers will probably enter the new heavy industry pool.

A beginning will also be made to substitute really practical safeguards against renewed German aggression for the existing Milt Gross-like mechanisms, so reminiscent of those which failed utterly after World War I. Finally, when the time comes, the Schuman proposal will also make it possible for Germany's industrial potential to contribute, without undue risk, to Western Europe's total strength. In short, unless all sorts of hookers and gimmicks are revealed by the detailed study now in progress, the Schuman proposal is an absolutely major and vital step along the very hard, difficult road toward a German solution.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Opened Door

Lippmann

THE FRENCH offer to Germany, made just as the Foreign Ministers were about to meet in London, is a radically new and unexpected event. Though the idea and the terms of the proposal have been studied and discussed for a long time, and are not in the least mysterious, the action of the French government in reaching the historic decision to make the offer was, as it had to be, a very closely guarded state secret.

Therefore Mr. Acheson, quite evidently Mr. Bevin also, are not prepared for what is a very different Europe than the one they gathered in London to discuss.

MR. ACHESON came to Europe in a state of mind and with a policy, if it can be called a policy, which was dreary and grimly discouraging. Every window seemed to be shut. All the shades had been pulled down. All the doors were bolted. And inside that dark and stuffy room the three Foreign Ministers were to feel their way around in circles, making tremendous efforts to decide whether to study the question of whether they should decide to create another committee to study the questions which had been studied and had been found insoluble. The French government has suddenly opened the door to the real world outside. Through the door there is coming a breeze which is blowing about and messing up the neat files of bureaucratic papers, and there is coming light which is startling and dazzling to the inmates of the room.

THE PROBLEMS of the Atlantic community as they were posed before the French action were insoluble. The growing knowledge all over western Europe that they were insoluble was producing, naturally enough and inevitably, a mood of defeatism and of escapism—of each nation for itself, and then in the most exposed areas of each person for himself, and the devil take the hindmost.

The problems of the Atlantic community had become insoluble because the three Western governments had no view of Germany which the Germans, apart from a few time-serving place hunters, could possible share. Western policy for Germany consisted in proposing to admit the western part of Germany to second-class membership in the Atlantic community. The Germans were to accept partition. They were to accept inferior status in the councils of the West. They were to accept total insecurity in that the front defenses of the West were to be located between the Elbe and the Rhine. And they were to be offered a choice between disarmament on the one hand, and on the other hand rearmament of the German infantry under the command of British, French and American generals.

This absurd conception of Germany was an attempt to contain the Soviet Union by using Germany, and then to contain Germany by the occupation and the statutes and the controls. The main container both of Russia and of Germany was to be the French army which, unfortunately for the planners of this caricature of a policy, was unable to be both in Indo-China and in Europe at the same time.

THE FRENCH decision to offer Germany not only peace and equality but an intimate partnership does not solve the insoluble problems which the Foreign Ministers were struggling with. It transcends those problems, it passes over and beyond them, by creating a wholly new European situation. A Franco-German partnership would at once give France and Germany a formidable and probably a decisive influence in all continental European questions. Internally and externally the security of both countries would at once be fortified. Each would have less to fear—namely the enmity or the treachery of the other. Both would have much more to hope for in a common use of their immense resources. Both would have restored to them a thing which to older nations is as important as bread and security, namely the conviction that they have an historic mission to perform in the world.

The Franco-German partnership would become the nucleus of a European system. There are many in the West who hope and believe, as all the Russians apparently fear, that the Franco-German partnership would become the nucleus of a west European System. That is, I think, impossible. The Franco-German partnership will break up and fall or it will be the nucleus of a European System. It can never be merely west European, because Germany can never relinquish her national unity nor her organic connections with eastern Europe.

The Franco-German partnership, if it is consummated, will strengthen, not replace, the German movement to end the partition of Germany and the European movement to end the division of Europe.

waiter went down with a trayful of meat and french-fried potatoes. Fortunately, no one was hurt, and we chalked it up as another experience.

We pulled into Nice at the delightful hour of 1 a. m. After a few hours sleep, we dressed and heard Mass at the Chapel of St. Martha, next to our hotel, the Atlantic. Breakfast was ample and quickly served. Then some took a short taxi ride along the beautiful beach front. The weather has been perfect, so far, with blue skies, warm sunshine and cool breezes.

Our train left for Rapallo at 10 a. m. and having a few minutes to spare at the station, Lillian Worden and I sat in a small park. I started talking to a French lady and made her understand that we we were from Washington, D. C. She told me that she had a son in Dayton, Ohio. In a moment she left and came back with a young lady who spoke a little English. She said that they were at the station to meet a Mr. Oberlander from Dayton and they wondered if I knew him so that I could point him out to them. Their idea of American geography was a little vague, to say the least.

We arrived in Rapallo about 6 p. m., and the first thing we all attempted—and I use the word advisedly—was a bath. Anyone who says you don't need any language but English is a terrific optimist. My little conversation books and dictionaries have been in constant and beneficial use.

Money Struggle

Rapallo is much smaller than Nice, but very picturesque. We walked along the shore of the Mediterranean after dinner, and the music from the sidewalk cafes made an appropriate background for the full moon shining on the water. As usual, our people descended on the souvenir shops and started struggling, for the first time, with Italian money.

Near our hotel, the Europa, there was an old Roman fort, at the water's edge, that was more than 5000 years old.

We went in it and up to the parapet to get a panoramic view of the town. You should have seen Mabel Hutchins climbing the iron rungs to the top—she finally made it!

On Saturday morning we went to confession and communion in the Franciscan Church of St. Francis, in order to fulfill partially the requirements to gain the Holy Year indulgences.

Tower of Pisa

We again had a full day's train ride and en route saw the famous leaning tower of Pisa, its cathedral and baptistry, as well as a glimpse of Carrara, which is known for its marble.

As we neared the City of Rome you could sense the excitement among our people, who were peering out the train windows, eager for their first glimpse of the Eternal City.

We were sent to various hotels, your correspondent going to the Boston, along with 23 others—Agnes All, Marie Boranek, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Curran, Helen M. Doyle, Mary and Grace Malamphy, Aloyse Moritz, Mrs. James E. Palmer, John Palmer, Doris and Pauline Pidgeon, Velma and Dorothy Ryan, Cecilia Thiel, Gertrude C. Thomas, and several others.

On Sunday morning we got up at 5 as we had to be in our places at St. Peter's by 7 a. m. for the canonization of Blessed Anthony Maria Claret. This we accomplished, and were within a few feet of the Holy Father when he was borne in, at 9 a. m., in the Sedia Gestatoria. It is utterly impossible to give you an adequate description of the scene. Lights suddenly blazing from many chandeliers, containing thousands of electric candles, the 50,000 people wild with enthusiasm, and the pageantry of the procession and the attendants to the Holy Father. I shall not attempt to describe the elaborate ceremonies, but suffice to say that we were in the basilica for five hours!

Knew They Were Coming

In the late afternoon, after a carriage ride through the famous Borghese Gardens with Velma and Dorothy Ryan, your correspondent took a half hour taxi ride out to the Convent of the Franciscan Sisters of the Atonement, the same order as at our Retreat House on Harewood Road in Brookland. Sister Felicita, who used to be in Washington, is the superior and she was delighted to see someone from home. She was expecting me and had baked a grand chocolate cake.

In the evening some of us took a sightseeing trip around Rome after dark. In the moonlight we saw the Colosseum, the greatest monument of ancident Rome, the Arch of Constantine, and many other structures of great historical interest.

On Monday morning, May 8, we had our audience with the Holy Father, which I have sent as a separate dispatch. (Miss Bower's cable describing the audience was published in The Washington Post on May 9.)

To Basilicas

In the afternoon, in order to complete the requirements for the Holy Year indulgences, the pilgrims went in special buses to the four designated basilicas. As we entered the Holy Door of St. Peter's, intoning the Litany of the Saints, the plain, black wooden cross was carried by George Johnson and the candles by Bill Maio and John Palmer. The prayers were led by Monsignor John S. Spence. Please realize that at the time we were doing this, thousands of other pilgrims were doing likewise, each group singing their own hymns, etc. There was more than a slight confusion of sound

At the Basilica of St. Paul, our Archbishop carried the cross through the Holy Door, with Charles Holbrook and William Griffin carrying the candles and the prayers led by Father Walter J. Schmitz.

At St. John Lateran, Father Leo G. Burke was the cross bearer, with Herman Lauten and William Crane carrying the candles. The prayers were led by the Rt. Rev. Henry F. Graebenstein.

At the last of the four basilicas, St. Mary Major, the cross and candle bearers were Monsignor Spence, Father Peter P. Rakowski, and Father Joseph F. Denges. The prayers were led by Father Charles Roach. In all, it took us about two hours to make the trip.

Catacombs Visited

On Tuesday morning we went off at 6 a. m. to the Catacombs of St. Callixtus outside the City of Rome on the old Appian Way. Both Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle and Monsigner Graebenstein said mass down in the Catacombs and we all received Holy Communion. The cave, with its altar of stone, was about 8 feet by 10 feet and was surrounded by loculi (I hope my spelling is correct), meaning places of burial. After a continental breakfast of delicious hot chocolate and crisp rolls, we came back to the city.

Several of us went to the Banca Commerciale Italiana to cash travellers' checks, as our lire were rapidly disappearing. The American Embassy was across the street, so we went over to pay our respects. The Ambassador, James Clement Dunn, was not there, but his secretary, Miss Hoffman, showed us around the beautiful building, which was formerly the Palace Marquerita. In the afternoon we visited more of the almost 500 churches in Rome, as well as the Forum, where Julius Caesar is buried, and the monument to Victor Emanuel II, which contains the tomb of Italy's Unknown Soldier. Across the street from this last magnificent structure of white marble is the building where Mussolini spoke from a balcony to the Italian people.

Vatican Tour

On Wednesday morning we had a three-hour conducted tour of the Vatican buildings. It would take many words to inadequately describe its glories. You have to see it in order to realize its splendor.

In the afternoon Helen O'Connor, Betty Fitzgerald and I were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett A. Scanlan, the latter formerly Helena O'Neil, of Washington. Then we were invited to tea with Lady Iza McLeod.

We have now used up all of our allotted time in Rome and will leave in the morning for Florence. I'll sum up our stay in the Eternal City by telling you what a prominent person said recently—that being here is a twofold joy, the joy of being abroad and the joy of knowing that you are at home!

Arrivederci,
KATHRYN.

Women Must Strengthen U. S. Morals, Students Are Told

Woman's great opportunity, Mrs. Eugene Meyer said yesterday at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel of Howard University, is "to ease the acute and dangerous tensions of American life."

This every woman can achieve, she said, "by learning to handle situations in all of her personal relations with disinterested devotion to her immediate pursuits and to her whole environment."

Mrs. Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post Co., spoke at the regular all-university Sabbath services in the chapel.

"The mounting divorce rate, the appalling number of youthful crimes, the deliberate neglect of children in many homes, and the looseness of sexual morality among young and old—these are merely some of the outstanding signs of a decaying moral structure in areas for which women have a prime responsibility," Mrs. Meyer said.

Responsible for the "transformation" in women's lives have been the Industrial Revolution, the two World Wars and the depression.

"She was forced through economic necessity and through choice into the competitive maelstrom of our free enterprise system. About 16 million women now have daily jobs, and many more are doing part-time work. . . ."

Modern women should "make society realize that upon the housewife now falls the combined tasks of economist, nutrition expert, sociologist, psychiatrist and educator," Mrs. Meyer said.

But society, instead of recognizing the housewife's importance, has so "depreciated" her status that "many women feel impelled to work outside the home in order to retain the respect of the community," the speaker asserted.

"Now, it is one thing if women wish to work," Mrs. Meyer said. "It is quite another—it is a destructive influence—if society forces women into the labor market in order that they may respect themselves and gain the respect of others."

Mrs. Meyer said that while "there probably have never been in any civilization so many ideal marital partnerships" as now, "it is no less true that there have never been so many women who are dissatisfied with being women and therefore wives and mothers."

Neglect of children is one symptom of this. It is due to the fact, she said, that "our scientific age is afraid of feeling. Why else should there be such a flood of books . . . which repeat with a monotonous insistence that what little children need most is the feeling of being wanted by their parents?"

"The sexual morality of our Nation has never been lower," Mrs. Meyer said, "because in seeking for equality, women have dragged their standards downward instead of trying to elevate those of the male. This sex-freedom which so many women are practicing is a delusion."

Divorce rates, Mrs. Meyer said, will never decrease until women realize that they are chiefly responsible for marital success.

"As I go about my social research today," she said, "especially among uprooted families living in the vast new housing developments, I am often forced to the conclusion that there are more good fathers today than good mothers. . . ."

Red Cross Reports Failure to Return Greek Children

Geneva, May 14 (AP).—The 67-nation League of Red Cross Societies formally reported today it had failed in its 17-month efforts to arrange repatriation of Greek children from Communist Eastern Europe.

The committee said the Red Cross was prepared to continue its efforts to repatriate the estimated 20,000 children to Greece, but added that "without a greater sense of social responsibility on the part of the governments concerned, the Red Cross cannot fulfil the task passed on to it" by the United Nations.

Chairman Basil O'Connor of the American Red Cross said some 9000 of the children were in Yugoslavia, while about 3000 each were in Bulgaria, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Hungary. The children, now aged between 5 and 20, were removed to these countries by the Communist rebels during the Greek Civil War.

Methodists Urge Pact With Soviet on A-Bomb

New York, May 16 (AP).—The annual New York Conference of the Methodist Church today urged the United States Government to seek a "standstill agreement" with Russia that would stop the making of atomic bombs.

Such an agreement also should place the present stockpile of atomic bombs under seal, pending settlement of the Cold War, the conference said.

The resolution asked Methodist churches "to press our own government to exhaust every resource of intelligent goodwill" toward restoration of normal contacts with Russia.

A. B. & W. Asks Fare Share Boost

The A. B. & W. Bus Co. has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a 6-cent increase in its share of the current 16-cent joint A. B. & W.-Capital Transit "Pentagon fare," company officials report.

Its request, if granted, would presumably raise the joint fare between points in the District and the Pentagon, Navy Annex, National Airport to 21 cents.

Capital Transit Co. officials said last night they were studying whether to ask for an increase in the firm's share of the joint fare.

At present, Capital Transit receives a seven-cent portion of the joint fare, with a nine-cent portion going to A. B. & W.

The Alexandria Barcroft and Washington Bus Co. has already asked the ICC and the Virginia State Corporation Commission to grant it a flat five-cent increase in all regular fares.

In addition, it has asked the ICC to abolish a special 10-cent rate on A. B. & W. only, between the District and the Virginia Government installations. Beverly C. May, general manager of the company, said yesterday the bus line would like to include these points in a 15-cent cash zone.

Workhouse Inmate Succumbs After Epileptic Convulsion

An inmate of the District Workhouse at Occoquan, Va., died in Gallinger Hospital yesterday of a heart condition produced by epileptic convulsions, District officials reported.

The dead man was Rease Shipley, 49, of 2008 M st. nw., who was serving a 30-day sentence for drunkenness.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy District coroner, said Shipley died of congestive heart failure induced by the recurrence of epileptic convulsions. He issued a certificate of death due to natural causes.

Donald Clemmer, director of the District Department of Corrections, said Shipley had been taken to the Workhouse hospital earlier last week after suffering an attack. He was released from the hospital Friday, Clemmer said, but became ill again about 6:30 p. m. Saturday.

Clemmer said when Shipley failed to improve he was sent to Gallinger for emergency treatment.

Oxygen, said Clemmer, was administered en route.

Shipley died at 1 a. m., shortly after arriving at the hospital.

Cancer Patient Is a Suicide

A 62-year-old man, who police said was suffering from cancer, was found dead in his garage early yesterday with the car motor running.

The man, Walter H. Hoffman of 3743 Benton st. nw., was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital at 1:45 a. m., 15 minutes after a neighbor—summoned by Mrs. Hoffman—found him slumped over in the front seat of the auto.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, issued a certificate of suicide. He said Hoffman died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police said Hoffman returned to his home Saturday after several weeks at Georgetown University Hospital, where he was treated for cancer of the throat and right lung.

Mrs. Hoffman, confined to her bed by illness for some time, said she became alarmed when her husband failed to retire.

Woodridge

. . . A Section of Washington centering around the intersection of South Dakota and Rhode Island Avenues, N. E.

Previous to 1888, when Woodridge was incorporated, the area was a part of the King's grant of "Barbados and Scotland," owned by Colonel Ninian Beall. The name "Woodridge" was suggested by the physical nature of the property—by the then-wooded ridge at what is today the intersection of Rhode Island and South Dakota Avenues.

Since 1881, the aim of Washington Permanent has been to provide the way to home-ownership for families in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia. To that end, loans totaling many millions of dollars have been made by our Association toward home buying—building—repairing—re-financing. A 62-year-old man, who police said was suffering from cancer, was found dead in his garage early yesterday with the car motor running.

The man, Walter H. Hoffman of 3743 Benton st. nw., was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital at 1:45 a. m., 15 minutes after a neighbor—summoned by Mrs. Hoffman—found him slumped over in the front seat of the auto.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, issued a certificate of suicide. He said Hoffman died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police said Hoffman returned to his home Saturday after several weeks at Georgetown University Hospital, where he was treated for cancer of the throat and right lung.

Mrs. Hoffman, confined to her bed by illness for some time, said she became alarmed when her husband failed to retire.

70th Year Helping Build Greater Washington

Woodridge

. . . A Section of Washington centering around the intersection of South Dakota and Rhode Island Avenues, N. E.

Previous to 1888, when Woodridge was incorporated, the area was a part of the King's grant of "Barbados and Scotland," owned by Colonel Ninian Beall. The name "Woodridge" was suggested by the physical nature of the property—by the then-wooded ridge at what is today the intersection of Rhode Island and South Dakota Avenues.

Since 1881, the aim of Washington Permanent has been to provide the way to home-ownership for families in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia. To that end, loans totaling many millions of dollars have been made by our Association toward home buying—building—repairing—re-financing. We invite a friendly discussion of your problem and our service.

With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, MAY 14.—Mickey Grasso, the Nats' catcher, shyly shuffled up to home plate with a deep blush tinting his face, just before game time today. His buddies of the American Prisoners of War Association were presenting him with a life membership in a novel sort of ceremony.

POVICH

Sergeant Grasso had crashed their society by being the guest of the German war machine for three years, three months and 10 days in various stalag-lufts. Aside from the 60 pounds he lost on the prisoners' austerity diet, it wasn't a total loss. At the end of the war he drew $3200 worth of pay in a chunk, plus the buck-a-day honorarum for war prisoners that amounted to $1195.

It was while Rommel was retreating befort Montgomery in the desert that Grasso and his small outfit were scooped up by the Nazis. Encircled by 10,000 Germans who had hauled up tanks, howitzers and other heavy weapons, the little band of Americans were goners. The second lieutenant in charge asked Grasso, "Mickey, shall we fight or go along with 'em?" answered Grasso, "Hell, let's not be brave."

Bucky Harris, hearing the story for the first time today, agreed with Grasso's decision. "Right there I could have told you Grasso had the makings of a smart catcher," said Harris.

THERE'S A WONDERFUL lack of respect for the Red Sox among the Nats, despite the lickings they have taken in Boston over the last four seasons. Those defeats have totaled 30 in their last 35 games here, but they blame most of 'em on the made-to-order left field wall of the Red Sox.

"Unless they can package that fence and take it on the road with 'em, they can't win no pennant," observed one slightly ungrammatical member of the Washington payroll. "They build their lineup around that fence."

In fact, the fence which is listed in the record books as being 315 feet distance from the plate is a bare fraud. So incensed was Ray Scarborough at the dirty business that he went to the trouble of pacing off the distance himself yesterday. He found it to be only 279 feet, 36 shy of what it was advertised.

"Who are they kidding?" said Scarborough.

SCARBOROUGH COULD ASK the same question, incidentally, about the recent trading transactions between the Washington and Boston clubs, which will probably lead to his own sale to the Red Sox.

If what has been happening isn't a transparent build-up to the trade of Scarborough to Boston before the June 15 deadline, then all the signs are wrong. Bill Goodman, 300-hitting second baseman is the man the Nats want.

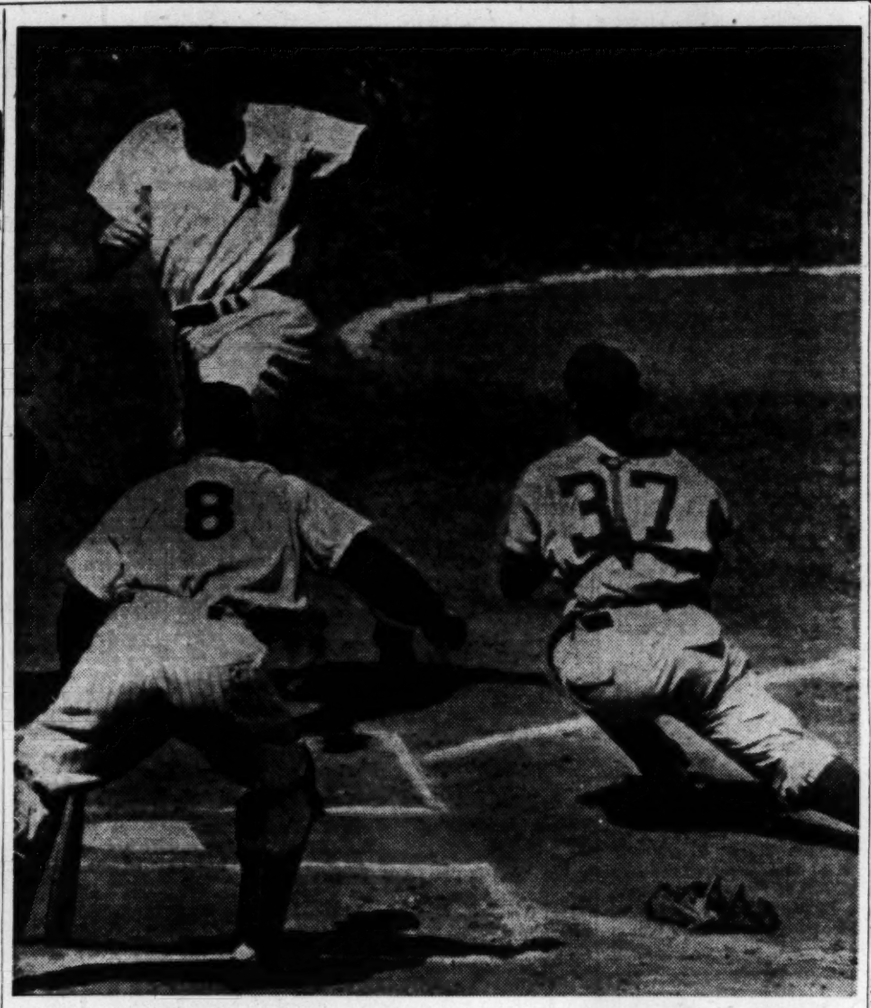
Last week's deal in which the Red Sox gave up a good shortstop, Merrill Combs, and Outfielder Tom O'Brien for Clyde Vollmer, was suspect immediately as the fore-runner to more dealings between the two teams. Vollmer commanded no such price, except in a Washington-Boston market. A few days later, the Sox sold Pitcher Frank Quinn to the Nats.

The inner workings began to unfold a little bit more today with the announcement that Washington had sold O'Brien to Louisville after keeping him only a week. And it is no coincidence that Louisville is a Red Sox farm club. When the soft music is done, hist to the Wagnerian thunder.

WITH THE MAJORITY of hero-worshipping Fenway Park fans, Ted Williams can do no wrong despite his small boyish insults to the customers, but the hard core of anti-Williams fans have found a new and rising hero in Rookie First Baseman Walt Dropo.

They're playing Dropo against Williams with noisy applause whenever the 6-5 220-pounder comes to the plate, and he's been giving 'em a lot to cheer about with his five home runs in the 13 games since they called him up from Louisville. It would suit the anti-Williams people just fine if Dropo continued the kind of pace that would put Ted in the shade.

In the case of Dropo, Manager Joe McCarthy is a lucky stiff. He gave up on Dropo last year, and again at the end of the 1950 spring training. McCarthy called him back from Louisville only after Bill Goodman hurt his leg and had to leave the lineup. It took an accident to get the Red Sox blessed with the kind of hitting Dropo is giving 'em. It was something less than managerial genius.



ALL ROADS LEAD TO HOME—And Yankee Outfielder Cliff Mapes is on the right one, sliding into home plate to score for the New Yorkers against the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday in Yankee Stadium. Rooting his teammate in is Catcher Yogi Berra while Catcher Mike Guerra (No. 37) of the A's makes a futile lunge at Mapes. Despite Mapes' run, the Yankees lost the ball game, 9-8

Sievers Hits Grand Slam, Drives in 5

Detroit, May 14 (AP).—Outfielder Roy Sievers of the St. Louis Browns drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single today to beat the Detroit Tigers, 7-3, and to ruin Hal Newhouser's pitching debut of the season.

Newhouser, who came up with a sore shoulder during spring training, lasted only three innings and was trailing, 5-0, when lifted for a pinch-hitter. He gave up four hits, four walks and hit one batter. A crowd of 30,794 saw the Brownies practically tuck the game away in the first inning as the hitherto weak-hitting Sievers got his four-bagger.

A single, a walk, and a hit batter had loaded the bases when Sievers slammed a 3-2 pitch into the left-field stands to make it a 4-0 game. It was the first extra base hit and the first run batted in of the season for Sievers, who took a .136 batting average into the game.

Sievers singled in the fifth Brownie run in the third inning after Newhouser had given up two walks. Sherman Lollar hit his fourth homer in the fourth inning off Relief Pitcher Dizzy Trout to make it a 7-0 game as he scored St. Louis pitcher, Cliff Fannin, who had doubled.

Fannin had a one-hit shutout through six innings but gave up three runs in the seventh. These came on a double by Hoot Evers and home runs No. 3 by Johnny Groth and Vic Wertz.

Cleveland, May 14 (AP).—Mike Garcia handcuffed the Chicago White Sox with four-hit pitching today as the Cleveland Indians won the second game of a doubleheader, 3-1.

Chicago took the first game, 3-2, on Mickey Haefner's six-hit hurling and a three-run uprising in the fifth inning.

Al Rosen hit his eighth home run for the Tribesmen in the opener.

2 Guys Named DiMaggio

Associated Press Photo

JOE AND JOE—The Joe DiMaggio on the right is the 18-year-old second cousin of Yankee Joe, on the left. The real DiMaggio's second cousin has been signed by the Nats and shipped to their Class D Concord, N. C., farm. He, too, is a centerfielder. The Nats hope that their scout, who said the youngster bears a facial resemblance to Yankee Joe, is a better judge of baseball than appearances

Genovese Farmed

O'Brien Sold To Louisville

Boston, May 14.—Outfielder Tom O'Brien, obtained from the Red Sox a week ago, got a fast shuffle from the Nats today as they pared down to the 25-player limit, five days ahead of the deadline.

O'Brien was sold outright to the Louisville Club of the American Association, a Red Sox farm team.

Also lopped off by the Nats was Shortstop George Genovese, sent to their Chattanooga farm team under 24-hour recall option.

O'Brien's sale price was not disclosed, but it was estimated at $10,000.

Nats Win On 19 Hits; Lose First

Bucky Harris yanked Weik after his first three pitches to Doerr were balls.

That's when Marrero took charge. He completed the walk to Doerr to force in another run, but he got rid of Dropo on three pitches, all strikes.

And after that, the Cuban permitted nobody to get on base except Keltner whose soft grounder took a freak hop over Yost's head for an eighth inning single.

Yost Homers

In that first game, the Nats threw one quick punch and then surrendered to Parnell. Eddie Yost, first up in the contest, banged a 3-2 pitch over the left field wall for a homer, and that's all the Washington runs that happened.

The Sox, however, weren't content with anything less than big figures in their first inning. Hittle put DiMaggio and Zarilla on base quickly, Stephens doubled off the left field wall for one run, Doerr hit a long fly for another, and Dropo then homered over the fence in left. It all amounted to a 4-1 lead.

Hittle only lasted two innings. Big Jim Pearce made his major league pitching debut, and got by nicely until a two-run fifth which Parnell opened with a two-bagger that Stewart dropped after backing into the wall. A walk and singles by Williams and Stephens, produced the two runs.

Nats Lack Punch

Dick Welteroth, seeing action for the first time, was conked for two runs in the eighth after walking 'em on base. Keltner singled one home, and Tebbetts moved the other in with a smack to right field that wound up as a mere fielder's choice when Keltner neglected to touch second base on his way to third.

The Nats were getting on base against Parnell, but Evans, Stewart and Yost hit into double plays at various times. They muffed their biggest scoring chance when, with the bases full in the seventh, Dente took what Umpire Passarella said was a third strike. Dente and the Nats said it wasn't, but Passarella won.

Giants Snap Phils Streak At 6 Straight

Philadelphia, May 14 (AP).—The New York Giants snapped the Philadelphia Phillies' six-game winning streak, 4-3, in the first game of a doubleheader today and then saw a 6-1 lead evaporate as the league-leading Philies rallied to take a 9-7 lead in the second game that was suspended at the end of the eighth inning.

The second game was halted at the close of the eighth inning under Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew law which forbids the start of an inning on Sunday after 6:45 p. m., Eastern Daylight Time.

The umpires promptly announced that the game will be completed the next time the Giants visit Philadelphia. This was the first time such a ruling was issued. Previously, games called under the curfew law were recorded as complete games.

New York had jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap, knocking Russ Meyer from the box before anyone was out. But the Phils rallied for four runs in the fifth to edge up to 5-6 and four more in the sixth as Del Ennis rapped his fifth homer of the year with two on.

The Giants won the first game on the eight-hit pitching by Larry Jansen, who fanned nine, and a three-run homer in the first inning by Bobby Thomson. Thom-

Tebbetts' 15-Game Hit Streak Ended by Teammate Keltner

Boston, May 14.—Birdie Tebbetts' 13-game hitting streak for the Red Sox ended today under circumstances that recalled the adage "anything can happen in baseball."

Hitless until his last time at bat, Tebbetts banged a line drive that dropped safely in right field, scoring one run and apparently sent Ken Keltner from first to third.

After the throw to the plate, which got through Catcher Al Evans, Pitcher Dick Welteroth recovered the ball. He threw it to Shortstop Combs who stepped on second claiming Keltner hadn't touched that base on his way to third.

Umpire Hank Soar upheld Combs, and Keltner was declared out. Thus under the scoring rules, Keltner could not be considered to have reached second. And thus it went into the books as a force play at second base, and the unlucky Tebbetts could be credited with only a "fielder's choice," not a hit.

Macks' 7-Run Fifth Inning Beats Yanks

New York, May 14 (AP).—Five consecutive singles highlighted a seven-run fifth inning rally that enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to overcome a six-run deficit and beat the New York Yankees, 9-8, today. The victory snapped a four-game Philadelphia losing streak and a five-game Yankee winning skein.

Lopat was coasting along behind a fat 7-1 lead when the roof caved in on him in the fifth.

Lopat walked Elmer Valo to start the inning. He then yielded consecutives singles to Pete Suder, Mike Guerra, Bobby Shantz, Eddie Joost and Paul Lehner. After Tommy Henrich fumbled Ferris Fain's grounder, Lopat was lifted in favor of Don Johnson. Johnson got Sam Chapman to fly to center for the first out but Bob Dillinger followed with a single to drive in the fifth and sixth runs of the inning.

Dillinger was out attempting to stretch his hit into a double but then Valo drew his second walk of the inning and Suder followed with his second single to bat in Fain with the seventh run. Guerra finally ended the rally with a pop fly to Henrich.

Navy, Hoyas Lose To Cornell in Frosh Dinghy Race

Annapolis, Md., May 14 (AP).—Teammates Jack Button and Norm Freeman finished one-two in the last race today to give Cornell a victory over Navy and Georgetown in a triangular freshman dinghy regatta.

The strong finish broke up a nip-and-tuck battle for top honors in the Severn River sailing and shot Cornell ahead with 99 points in the nine-race program.

Navy finished with 91 and Georgetown with 53.

Stevens Institute and Lafayette also were scheduled to compete but did not appear.

Freeman's second place in the final event gave him 49 points, top individual score for the competition, although he won only one race. Button was second with 30 and Watson Goldsmith of Navy and Pete Murray of Georegtown tied for third with 25.

Musial Leads Cards, 8-7

St. Louis, May 14 (AP).—Two Cincinnati rallies whittled down the St. Louis Cardinal's one-time seven-run lead but the Redbirds finally squeezed past the Red 8 to 7 today.

Stan Musial led the St. Louis attack with a single, double and triple.

Red Munger had a four-hit victory in his hands when the Cincinnati club came to bat in the seventh.

Singles by Connie Ryan, Johnny Wyrostek and Virgil Stallcup, a walk to Grady Hatton and a triple by Lloyd Merriman brought the count to 8-5.

Al Brazle then relieved Munger and struck out Bob Usher

Johnstown Dies; '39 Derby Winner

Paris, Ky., May 14 (AP).—Johnstown, the winner of the 1939 Kentucky Derby, died today at the Claiborne Stud of A. B. Hancock near Paris.

Johnstown had a successful season at the races as a 3-year-old winning, in addition to the Derby, the Wood Memorial, Belmont, Withers and Dwyer Stakes.

Johnstown belonged to the Bel-Air Stud of William Woodward of New York. Woodward purchased him as a yearling from Hancock.

Dodger Rookie Podbielan Wins Third, Stopping Braves, 6 to 4

Brooklyn, May 14 (AP).—Rookie Clarence Podbielan hung up his third victory of the season today, but needed help in the late innings from Jack Banta as the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped the powerful Boston Braves, 6-4.

Jim Russell of the Dodgers homered in the fifth for Brooklyn's final run.

The Dodgers fought off a vicious Boston seventh inning attack to win and end a three-game losing streak before 24,611 fans.

Podbielan limited the Tribe to three singles until Walker Cooper led off the seventh with a homer, his third hit of the game.

Four more blows followed Cooper's circuit wallop, which was his second in as many games for Boston, and the Tribe had four runs in when Banta was rushed to Podbielan's rescue with one out. Banta stopped the rally and allowed one single the rest of the way.

Led by Billy Cox, Jackie Robinson and Duke Snider with two hits each, the Dodgers scored three runs on starter Warren Spahn in the first and two more in the fourth. After Spahn was removed, Russell led off the fifth with his fifth homer off Bob Hogue.

Your Host, Still Tired From Derby Effort, Out of Preakness

Preakness Prep

No Betting On Pimlico's 3-Horse Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 14.—There will be nine races at Pimlico tomorrow afternoon with no wagering on the Preakness Prep purse, a mile and one-eighth test which drew but three candidates.

The Maryland Racing Commission granted the track officials an additional race and the Prep will be tha first time since 1941 when a "no-wagering" contest went postward. This was the occasion of the special in which Market Wise defeated Haltal.

Horsemen were high in the praise of the Pimlico powers in scheduling the $5000 purse rather than declare the test off when C. V. Whitney's Dooly, S. W. Labrot, jr.'s Arcave and Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman were the only candidates named. The trio are eligible for the Preakness on Saturday and their showings this afternoon will determine their chances of going postward for the big prize.

Arcave is likely to command strong support. The son of Discovery turned in the fastest morning work of the session when he traveled a mile and one-eighth in 1:53 3/5 and appears ready to hold his own in the Prep.

Dooly was an also-ran in the Derby when he accompanied his stablemate, Mr. Trouble, to the post. Kinsman has failed to live up to his winner form and must go in much improved style to threaten.

Pimlico swings into the most important phase of its spring meeting with the new week for the seventy-fourth running of the Preakness stakes on Saturday is the headliner of the five-day span of thoroughbred competition.

King Ranch's Middleground, C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince and C. V. Whitney's Mr. Trouble, the first three to finish in the Kentucky Derby, are regarded as certain Preakness starters.

The remainder of the field will be drawn from Brookmeade Stables' Greek Ship, William Helis' Selector, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Suleiman, King Ranch's On the Mark, Mrs. William H. Labrot's Balkan, W. T. Leatherbury's Eastern Flyway, Dr. C. H. Scheid's Maryland Day and Brandywine Stable's Greek Song.

Always the big day of the Maryland spring racing season, the Preakness day program is expected to attract upward of 40,000 patrons, provided of course that the weather is good.

Silver Spring Wins

Silver Spring defeated Gaithersburg, 8-3, last night at Gaithersburg in the opening game of the Montgomery County Night Baseball League. Burtonsville plays Bethesda at 8 tonight at Gaithersburg.

Hill Prince, Middlegr'nd Duel Again

By John Chandler

New York, May 14 (AP).—California's Your Host, badly beaten Kentucky favorite, was withdrawn today from the Preakness, making next Saturday's race at Baltimore look even more like a two-horse duel between Hill Prince and Middleground.

Trainer Harry Daniels insisted there was nothing wrong with the Santa Anita Derby winner but added: "I'm not sure he's a router.

"He was an awfully tired horse after the Derby."

Hill Prince and Middleground will head the field in the $50,000-added Preakness at Pimlico, second jewel in the Triple Crown that also includes the Belmont Stakes. But they could run into trouble—Mr. Trouble, for instance.

The bob-tailed Hill Prince, beaten by Middleground in the Kentucky Derby, came back Saturday with a brilliant performance to win the $29,750 Withers Mile at Belmont Park. The condensed, Long Island version of the Derby lacked mint juleps, and a few other Louisville patents, but it was a "hoss race" of A-1 caliber.

It was strictly a two-horse contest after the pair hit the top of the stretch, and Hill Prince spun home a length and a half to the good over the Derby champ. But a tough baby named Mr. Trouble is down at Pimlico in Baltimore, waiting for the two big horses to come to town for the rich Preakness stakes.

Mr. Trouble, who went out and ran with the speedy Your Host in the Derby then faded to finish third, is sure to have a lot of backers with folding green stuff in the Preakness. The Derby was a mile and one-quarter, while the Preakness is only a sixteenth less, one mile and three-sixteenths. Many railbirds opined that Mr. Trouble moved too soon in the Derby, and will find the Preakness route to his liking.

Hill Prince, the Virginia-bred ace of Chris Chenery's stable, did a terrific job in the Withers, equalling the record time of 1:35 4/5 in the seventy-fifth running of the famed one-mile stake. He showed that he will be the favorite at the mutuel windows for the Preakness.

Andy Schuttenger, trainer of Ferd, who runs in the silks of his wife, also was uncertain about the Preakness. Ferd took over the pace-setting job from Maryland Day going into the far turn in the Withers, then dropped back to finish third as Hill Prince and Middleground fought for the one-two money.

"I may not know until Tuesday about sending Ferd. He has a busy stakes schedule and there's no use going up against a Jack Dempsey just to get socked," said the little former jockey.

Poor Outfielder, Good Pitcher

Becraft Couldn't See Ball At First, Now His Foes Can't

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

GEORGE WASHINGTON University lost a good outfielder, but gained a better pitcher because Bones Becraft is near-sighted.

When he was at Gaithersburg High, Bones longed to be an outfielder, but when he couldn't follow the ball from 300 feet, out, he turned to pitching.

BONES BECRAFT

Now he's throwing such a good fast ball and sharp curve that his foes can't follow it. He boasts a 6-2 record, his latest win being a three-hit 2-0 shutout over Virginia. His control is fair, too; he's walked less than four men a game.

THE MEN'S softball champions of Washington for the past five years suddenly found themselves without a sponsor last week until they were literally rescued by a Blank check.

Jack Blank, who backs Arcade Pontiac Co., picked up the Alexandria Night Softball League franchise held by Club Kavakos since 1945. And his team is favored to win the title again.

Walter Smith, former Central High pitcher, is manager, and some of his players are Leftfielder Bob Heinbaugh from Maryland, Catcher Bob Lamon of American U. and Fred Kramer and Temple Jarrell, top underhand pitchers around town for the past 10 years.

CHARLIE HEINBAUGH, former Nats farmhand from Washington, was one of the big reasons the Hagerstown, Md., club of the Interstate League opened up with 15 straight victories. Charlie, who used to play second base at McKinley Tech, batted .335 during the streak. He's now the property of the Braves.

GENE SCHRODDER, the Anacostia boy who made his mark as an end on Virginia's football team, is coming into his own in track. The other day, he equalled the State mark of 9.7 for the 100, and broke the 220-yard standard in 21.2. Three other D. C. High alumni are doing okay for Virginia's baseball team. There's Tom Evans, former Wilson High pitcher, who has a 2-1 record, one of his wins being over Maryland. Stan Harris, jr., son of the Nats' manager, has played first base in the last seven games, six of them won by the Cavaliers. And Bob Huff, former Washington-Lee High boy, is playing second base and hitting .313.

Bill Bennings Says

Dear Folks: At Pimlico.

Well, Hill Prince hung a defeat on Middleground in the Withers on Saturday. Middleground was second, resuming a position he had a strong grip on in the races before the Derby. Could Max Hirsch be planning another big victory? Middleground was the best conditioned horse for the Kentucky race in my book. I don't believe he was knocked out by the Withers effort and will be right back to give all when the larger shekels are down at Pimlico this weekend. After some controversy on the subject, the local officials have designated the 1950 race as the 74th Preakness. This figure includes the 15 editions of the race that were run at Gravesend during the period from 1894 through 1908. But any way you count Preaknesses, this is going to be a great one. See you on the rail. BILL.

Prince Georges Wins, Gains State Finals

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Prince Georges Country Club swept into the finals of the Maryland State golf team tournament yesterday by routing Elkridge Country Club, 17½-½, at the Landover course.

While Prince Georges was trouncing Elkridge, the Baltimore Country Club eliminated Bethesda, 11-7, at Five Farms and will meet Prince Georges for the championship next Sunday.

Voigt had a 73, one over par; Morris a 74, while it took Sweetser 75 strokes for the 18 holes.

John Tompkins and John Hoffman prevented a shutout for Elkridge by winning ½ point from Prince Georges' two Eddies—Semmler and Bean.

In the Bethesda-Baltimore C. C. match, Pro Walter Romans and Steve Husted collaborated for a best ball of 67, three under par, to beat Bethesda Pro Harry Griesmer and Bill Shaw, 2½-½.

Hopp Has Two Homers In Nightcap

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates swept a twin bill with the Chicago Cubs, 6-5 and 16-9, before a near-capacity crowd of 34,659 today. It ended a three-game losing streak for the Bucs.

George Strickland, utility infielder, hit a pinch single with the bases loaded to drive in the tying and winning runs for the Pirates in the ninth inning of the curtain-raiser.

The Pirates led all the way in the nightcap after battering Doyle Lade off the hill with a four-run outburst in the first inning. Eventually they rolled up 21 hits, with Johnny Hopp hammering out six straight with two homers and four singles.

It was a costly day for the Cubs, inasmuch as they also lost the services of Hal Jeffcoat, fleet outfielder, for from six to eight weeks. Jeffcoat broke his left collarbone trying to make a diving catch of Pete Castiglione's double in the first inning of the opener.

BLOCKADE—Shortstop Roy Smalley, left, and Centerfielder Phil Cavaretta, of the Chicago Cubs, seem to have second base blocked off, but Outfielder Ralph Kiner, of the Pirates, slides in between them to reach the base safely. Kiner and Pete Castiglione tried a double steal with Castiglione tagged out at third. Coming in to help Smalley and Cavaretta, if there's any room for him, is Preston Ward (No. 29), Cubs' firstbaseman. Umpire Scotty Robb, left, calls the play. The Pirates won, 6-5, and also captured the second game of the double-header

Joe DiMaggio Misses Game With A's, Has Strained Back

New York, May 14 (AP).—Outfielder Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees did not play in today's game with the Philadelphia Athletics because of a strained back.

DiMaggio, who has been in one of the worst batting slumps of his career, hurt a back muscle while catching a fly ball in yesterday's game.

He said he didn't feel it at the time but today his back stiffened badly.

DiMaggio will not be with the Yankees when they take off at noon tomorrow, by air for St. Louis, but he will fly West later, and is expected to be in the lineup Tuesday night when the Yanks play the Browns at Sportsman Park.

Brothers Wins In Germany

Berlin, May 14 (AP).—Elkins Brothers, heavyweight, from Washington, D. C., sent Americans off to a winning start in the first American-German boxing program here since the war today.

The hard-punching Brothers knocked out Heinz Tietze of Berlin in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-round bout before a capacity crowd of 25,000.

Brothers took command of the fight after weathering a flurry of blows from the German in the second round. He then floored Tietze for an eight count in the second and dropped him twice in the third. The knockout came on a right to the jaw.

The German went down under a flurry of rights to the chin before he could land a counter-punch.

This bout was refereed by Max Schmeling, Germany's former world heavyweight champion.

Gene Jones, heavyweight from Camden, N. J., knocked out Adolf Kleinholdermann of Bad Durkheim in 1:16 of the first round in another bout.

Reclamation Bureau, Indian Affairs Face Probe by House Group

Two Interior agencies are to be investigated—the Reclamation Bureau and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The House Appropriations Committee will do the job with trained investigators borrowed from other agencies.

Reclamation officials seem to have a habit of making powerful people sore at them. The bureau was investigated a year ago by the House Expenditures Committee. Then it provoked the President by undercutting his Budget Bureau.

SHAKE-UP: A major shake-up is brewing for Commerce's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Secretary Charles Sawyer has decided to recast its personnel and policies. His announcement on it will be made this week.

NOTES: The House has voted pay boosts for some employes in its press and radio galleries . . . Representative Passman (D., La.) says the Army Engineers won't have money to prepare plans and specifications for future river and harbor projects under the House-approved budget . . . The Post-office Department has given postmasters until June 25 to prepare operating cost estimates for the first quarter of the 1951 fiscal year.

ITEMS: At Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration, cash awards for economy suggestions have been given to Elmer C. House, $50; Mildred L. Harris, $35, and Curtis W. Peck, $15 . . . At Customs, Milton Mitchell has been awarded $75 for a suggestion . . . Louis Brownlow will speak Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel to the American Society for Public Administration . . . The Army Chemical Corps is looking for a veteran with permanent status to take a CPC-3 messenger job. Go to Building T-7, Room 2719, at Gravelly Point for details.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service exams will be announced soon for laboratory mechanics and machinists, $2200 to $3825 starting salaries, to fill openings here . . . About 3300 persons outside of this city will take steno and typing tests for jobs here on May 25 and 29. In addition, similar exams will be given soon for the 5540 persons who have applied for them. The typing and steno tests are still open . . . June 6 is the last day applications will be accepted for correctional officer, $2900 to $3125, and fireman, $2450, to fill openings in Federal prisons.

CONVERSION: The Civil Service is steadily returning to normal peacetime operations. As of April 1, there were only 132,515 persons lacking regular status in jobs which require competitive tests. This is a decline of 28,305, or 10 percent, since January 1. The big bloc of nonstatus employes in status jobs is in the Postoffice Department, about 50,000. That number will be cut sharply if the postal economy program goes through.

I & N: The Civil Service Commission has opened the door to regular status for hearing examiners of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The Supreme Court recently held that hearings in deportation cases must be conducted under the Administrative Practices Act.

After a period of uncertainty, the commission has now amended its regulations to allow the agency to recommend status employes for hearing examiner jobs under the administrative law, and those employes the commission clears will be rated hearing examiners.

Wounded Girl, 2½, Shows Improvement

Condition of Brenda Wood, 2½, remained critical yesterday, but showed "improvement," officials at Arlington Hospital said.

The girl was shot accidentally in the stomach by her 4-year-old brother, Richard, Friday at their home, 1003 Westmoreland rd., Falls Church, Va. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. William Wood. Whole blood and plasma have been administered to the little girl.

MUSIC WINNERS—Fan Nell Daniels (at piano), Dunbar High student, won first place in the instrumental division yesterday in the Hamilton National Bank High School Music Talent Contest. First place in the vocal field went to William Graham of Coolidge (center). Cigmund Spaeth (left) made awards

By Paul Hume

In her account of Chopin's Fantasy Impromptu, Miss Daniels won over a field of five other pianists and violinists.

First place in the vocal field was won by William Graham, of Coolidge. A bass-baritone, Graham sang Verdi's "Infelice," from the opera Ernani.

Instrumental runner-up in the close contest was violinist Doris Gazda from Wilson High, who played the allegro opening from Mozart's D Major Concerto.

Allan Milofsky, tenor, was second in the vocal bouts. The contest brought to a close a year-long search throughout Washington public and parochial high schools for the finest musical talent. It has been sponsored by the Hamilton National Bank. First prizes are $500 college scholarships to the winners in the two divisions.

Additional prizes were given for further honors. McKinley High School won the bank's trophy for the best all-around musical program presented during the contest.

Central High School's Chorus, directed by Miss Jeannette Wells, won first place for choral singing. The chorus was heard several times during the program.

St. John's College School won first place among band entries, and Wilson's orchestra took top honors in that field.

Sigmund Spaeth, writer and lecturer on music, presented the trophies and awards to the winners.

Judges for the finals included Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral; Howard Mitchell, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra; Warner Lawson, dean of the Howard University School; Patrick Hayes of the Hayes Concert Bureau; Miss Alice Eversman, music critic of the Washington Evening Star; and Paul Hume of The Washington Post.

During the course of the contest, the judges eliminated nearly 150 contestants, to arrive at the nine finalists.

Sharing the finals with yesterday's winners and runners-up were Dorothy Kemp, Maria Ros, and James Geralis, pianists, Danny Steinberg, violinist, and Constance Plain, mezzo-soprano. The excellence of all contestants won approval from a large audience, and commendation from the panel of judges.

Suspect Seized In Robbery Of Cab Driver

Police yesterday arrested a 23-year-old man less than an hour and a half after a taxi driver was slugged with a length of lead pipe and robbed of $13.

However, detectives said the suspect does not match the description of the holdup man who last week robbed 10 cab drivers in five nights.

The suspect is Rufus Green, jr., of 909 Columbia rd. nw. He admitted the holdup, police said. Leon E. Etheridge, 34, of 1753 Willard st. nw, was the victim.

Etheridge said he picked up a passenger at 11th and Irving sts. nw. about 3 a. m. At 10th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw., Etheridge said, the passenger hit him with the lead pipe, pulled a gun and took the $13.

Then, Etheridge said, he was ordered to drive to 11th st. and Columbia rd. The bandit left the cab there and escaped on foot.

Detective Sergt. Vernon H. Culpepper and Plainclothesman Arthur J. Sweeney arrested Green from a description given them by Etheridge at Freedmen's Hospital, where Etheridge was treated for scalp cuts.

The two detectives arrested Green at 7th and N sts. nw., at 4:15 a. m. They said Green had a .32 caliber revolver.

Green, charged with robbery, will appear in Municipal Court today.

Long-Distance Operators Busy On Mother's Day

Long-distance phone traffic to and from Washington was heavy yesterday—Mothers Day—Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. officials reported.

While they said there was no way to estimate the number of calls immediately, they added that a "good guess" was that the phoning this Mother's Day was at least as heavy and perhaps heavier than last year.

Delays were reported to some points although a full staff of operators was on duty.

Arlington Jr. Chamber Gets Prizes

Virginia Beach, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—For its work in enlisting contributions of material and labor toward the $375,000 Anderson Orthopedic Hospital, the Arlington Junior Chamber of Commerce won a double award, it was announced here today.

The two awards came from the Virginia Junior Chamber of Commerce, one for the "project of the year," and the other a quarterly award for a project in public health. The Anderson Orthopedic Hospital, a 40-bed institution at S. 25th st. and Army-Navy dr., is now 90 percent complete as to structure.

It was begun last May with cooperation of the Northern Virginia Builders Association and the Northern Virginia Plumbers Association. Since then, more than 200 firms and individuals contributed materials and services to the construction job.

Completion of the hospital, which is to be owned and governed by a non-profit corporation of Northern Virginia citizens, is expected within a few months.

The awards came at the conclusion of the annual convention here of the Virginia Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Giessenbier Memorial Trophy for the outstanding chapter, went to Roanoke. Runners-up were Richmond and Virginia Beach. Runners-up for the outstanding project, which Arlington won, were Roanoke and Williamsburg.

In a closing address to the convention, Herman Steinkraus, of Bridgeport, Conn., called for preservation of freedoms in the United States at the expense of governmental subsidies and protections, which he asserted jeopardize those freedoms by extending governmental control of individuals.

Dispersion Called Aid To Defense

NSRB Deputy Tells Planners Session Here That Cities Make Easy Targets

Dispersion of cities and industry was recommended yesterday as a way of reducing the chances of an atomic debacle.

William Gill, deputy director of civilian mobilization, National Security Resources Board, declared that space is the only adequate "before-the-fact defense" against an atomic explosion.

Gill spoke at a luncheon of the American Institute of Planners at the Burlington Hotel. Other sessions were held throughout the day at the Statler Hotel.

Paul Oppermann, AIP president, agreed with Gill in the need for dispersing and noted that planners have been trying to encourage this for reasons of more healthful living for many years. He said the AIP will cooperate with Federal agencies in applying planning techniques to decentralization programs.

Gill did not call for a Government-enforced program to this end, but instead urged a "well-planned voluntary program of capital expenditure" to achieve "very substantial results in orderly dispersal."

One of the first ways of accomplishing this would be through encouragement of dispersion of new industrial plants, he declared. An average of 12 to 14 billion dollars' worth is invested in this each year and planners may exert their influence in its location, he explained.

Another way to accomplish decentralization is by voluntarily fixing an upper limit to the size of cities, he said. This would encourage development of clusters of nearby towns, but these do not have the "target attractiveness of a big city," Gill declared.

"A concentrated city of half a million provides the kind of target for which A-bombs are best adapted, but in a well-spaced cluster of 10 cities of 50,000 this attractiveness is considerably reduced and may even be eliminated entirely," Gill told the planners.

Such decentralization would relieve cities of a "losing battle"—the "unending search for remedies that don't quite solve congestion problems and the search for funds to meet the ever-rising costs of public improvement and services," Gill said.

About 350 billion dollars will be spent for new construction in the United States in this decade, Gill said.

Laise to Head Fund Efforts For Red Cross

Frederic S. Laise of 2873 South Abingdon st., Arlington, yesterday was named national director of American Red Cross fund raising, succeeding Royal C. Agne, 3825 Livington st. nw., who is retiring May 31.

Laise will be assisted by John L. Dismukes, 4709 South 29th st., Arlington, in the fund-raising activity.

Laise entered Red Cross work in 1942 as assistant regional director in the Eastern Area office at Alexandria, Va. During the war he was in the Navy as flag lieutenant and aide to the commander of Carrier Division 24 in the Pacific.

In 1946, he returned to the Red Cross and a year later was appointed assistant area manager. He has been serving as associate director of fund raising at national headquarters since December 1, 1949.

The retiring chief fund raiser, Agne, has headed the Red Cross section since 1945. He entered the Red Cross in 1919 and after a period as an educator and welfare director, he returned to the organization in 1941.

In 1947, he was sent to Europe on a mission for the League of Red Cross Societies, holding fund-raising conferences for national Red Cross groups in 10 countries. He authored a manual on fund raising for the League, now translated into French and Spanish.

Dismukes was fund-raising director in the North Atlantic area from August, 1948, to July, 1949, prior to its merger with the Eastern area. He served with the Ninety-ninth Infantry Division as a Red Cross field director and was twice wounded. He has been assistant director of fund raising in the Eastern area.

Washington Turns Out for a Fine Sunday

A FISH STORY—Members of National Capital Casting Club, in Skishing contest, perfect casting technique by aiming weights at metal rings floating in Reflecting Pool

Mothers knew something was wrong early yesterday.

The kids were quiet and Daddy was up and stirring—just what she didn't know.

Then she did. In trooped the children, each with a ribbon-tied offering and Daddy bringing up the rear with a breakfast tray—complete to a frosted cake topped with an orchid.

It was Mother's Day and a nice Sunday, too, in spite of the threatening clouds.

After the fond wishes were exchanged, many family circles repaired to the usual weekend attractions.

One favorite spot was the Zoo. Lunch tables were crowded with family wickers and throughout the Zoo children were insisting on 25-cent balloons with the elephants on them, while others set up howls for popcorn, pop and other nourishing foods.

Now you know why mothers get gray, even on Mother's Day.

In one family unit, the Zoo visit set off a reminder that the big circus is coming to town Thursday and pressing demands for tickets. "I want to see the circus," was repeated over and over to a harassed mother.

Washington's sights brought out the tourists, Mother's Day or no, in costumes ranging from Sunday best to summer worst. Sport shirts loud enough to frighten the most blase Zoo inmates were proudly sported by some.

One hopeful Mom cautioned her son, as he dashed along the sidewalk: "Watch that white linen suit. I just cleaned it."

Tourists have a questionable day ahead today. The Weatherman promises mostly cloudy and warm with showers likely. The evening will be clear and cooler, though.

Yesterday's high came at 12:10 p. m. at 74 degrees. About that time along the Potomac seawall, Hain's Point and other spots, women soaked up the sun in their meager sunsuits. Alongside, in many instances, were males in abbreviated costume showing off their chesty manliness.

Some spent the day in recreation—sailing, rowing, fishing, golf or tennis, and still others toured the city's gardens. In short, everybody was relaxing in one way or another.

Post Starts Quest for Ideal Dad of 1950

The Washington Post today begins a little census-taking of its own—a search for the "Ideal Father of 1950." Somewhere in the Washington area is a dad who will be selected as the best candidate for that special title.

All it takes is a letter. What about it kids? If you've got some good reasons why your "pop" is the District's best, write them down now and send in care of the Ideal Father Editor.

It might be that he has a certain way of grinning; or he likes red bow-ties because they fit his personality—or he used to be a clown and can tell some "humdinger" stories. Maybe he has done something unusual that makes him a fitting candidate, or nothing unusual in a nice way.

By coincidence, a "Samuel" has won the Ideal Father contest the past two years. Samuel S. Snyder, 1202 Hamilton st. nw., a mathematician, took the title in 1949. The previous year Samuel R. Davenport, 407 S. Cherry st., Falls Church, an employe of the House of Representatives, won the prize. This may be the year for the Charlies, the Jims, accountants or bakers.

You see, it's up to you to get your ideas across in that letter you're about to write. Contest deadline is June 9.

Any father in the Washington area is eligible. It's an easy contest—with just a few rules.

1. Letter should be in the handwriting of the person submitting entry. (A mother can write for baby.) Neatness is not a winning factor, but letter should be legible.

2. Mention ages of persons in the letter (as far as possible).

3. Sign the letter with full name, and give address and school you are attending or did attend.

4. Address entry to The Ideal Father Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

On June 18, Father's Day, the Capital's best dad will be the man of the day. Plans are under way for special surprises for him and his family. Here's a taste of them: He'll be the guest, en famille, on a radio rogram over WTOP, escorted to dinner at the Statler Hotel, and treated to a show at the Loew's Capitol Theater.

Two persons were killed and 24 injured in traffic accidents yesterday in the District and nearby.

Roger L. Keys, 37, of 1416 3d st. nw., was crushed beneath a truck at 10:15 p. m. when, police said, he apparently tried to board it.

Driver of the truck, Arthur Thomas, 33, of 688 4th st. ne., said several men yelled at him as he drove near 38 Decatur st. ne. Thomas said he thought they wanted to know if he needed a helper.

Yelled For Him to Stop

Thomas said he motioned that he didn't, then heard them yelling again—this time to stop.

Pvts. Paul Bixler and E. B. Shipman said Keys apparently lost his balance trying to jump on the moving truck. His head was crushed beneath the wheels, they said.

Thomas was ordered booked on a technical charge of hold for the coroner.

James R. Brown, 53, of West Friendship, Md., a pedestrian, was killed when he was struck about a half-mile north of Glenelg, Md., on Route 32. Brown was an employe of the Sykesville State Hospital, police said. Operator of the car was Herbert F. Gregory of Mount Wilson, Md., Maryland State Police at Waterloo reported. Gregory was charged technically with manslaughter and reckless driving and released on bond.

Twenty persons were injured when a hay-ride truck bearing members of a Woodrow Wilson High School sorority and their dates crashed into a bus and then into a ditch in the 6700 block of Central ave., Capitol Heights, Md. Twelve required hospital treatment and eight were admitted.

Watson Leese, 17, of 3726 Warren st. nw., apparently the worst injured, was taken to Casualty Hospital and then removed to Emergency Hospital. Police said he had suffered several broken ribs and internal injuries and was in serious condition.

Also taken to Casualty Hospital were: Alvin Thompson, 20, of 3701 McKinley st., Chevy Chase, Md., face cuts and bruises, not admitted; Joan Behrens, 17, 6282 29th st. nw., cuts and bruises and arm injury, admitted, and Alvina Chism, 17, 4432 Chesapeake st. nw., head injury and face cuts, admitted.

List of Injured

Taken to Prince Georges General Hospital were:

Mary Ann Curry, 24, 4613 38th st. nw., fractured wrist; Brad Matthews, 17, 5024 Sedgwick st. nw., bruises and cuts; Connie Dunn, 18, 5329 42d st. nw., bruises and cuts; Helen Miller, 18, 6008 34th pl. nw., cuts and bruises; and James Barnhard, 22, 4323 7th st. nw., cuts and bruises, all of whom were admitted.

Also, Elizabeth Payne, 19, 4707 Connecticut ave. nw.; Kenneth McLaren, 18, 3721 Legation st. nw.; and Joan Rosinski, 18, 3306 Quesada st. nw., all three of whom were treated for cuts and released.

The driver of the truck, Alan Ross, 46, of 1405 Columbia st. nw., was charged with reckless driving, operating without a permit, and failing to have a registration card. He was released on $300 bond for a hearing in Police Court at Upper Marlboro, Md., June 2. Police said the truck is owned by Richard Mosley of 1538 2d st. sw.

The hayride was given by Beta Theta Phi Sorority and the merrymakers were returning from Beverly Beach at the time of the accident. The truck struck the rear of a parked bus operated by John L. Havenner, 5477 Spring st., Forestville, Md., and then careened into the ditch.

Algernon Foreman, 27, of 108 M st. nw., was injured critically when he stepped out of his automobile on Baltimore blvd. north of Laurel, Md., into the path of an automobile. He was tossed 50 feet. Foreman was taken to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore.

Papal Blessing Given 10,000 at Catholic U.

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Pope Pius XII yesterday imparted his apostolic blessing upon an estimated 10,000 Catholics who attended an outdoor World Sodality Day observance at Catholic University.

The Holy Father's paternal greeting was received in a cablegram sent to the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington, who read the message.

The service in honor of Mary, the Mother of God, opened with a procession into the vast university stadium of clergy and laity, led by boys bearing aloft a statue of the Blessed Virgin.

Garland of Flowers

As the audience sang the words "Oh Mary We Crown Thee With Blossoms Today, Queen of the Angels, Queen of the May," Miss Mary Catherine McCarthy, a senior at Immaculata Seminary, placed a garland of flowers on the head of the statue.

Men and women students from the Georgetown Medical Center formed a living rosary and led in the recitation of the "Hail Mary" and the "Our Father."

The Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, gave the sermon, preceding benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Msgr. Cartwright reminded the congregation that "the church has always kept the thought and image of Mary before her children."

Inspired the Crusaders

"She is part and parcel of the Gospel and has remained part and parcel of the religion of Christ," he said. In the past she inspired the crusaders, and today inspires the courage of the persecuted, the priest said.

Though man's knowledge, education and skill can change his surroundings, they cannot minister to his deeper spiritual hungers, Msgr. Cartwright said.

Man, he said, needs to know the facts of science and literature, but he has an absolute need to know the things which come through Divine manifestation. He needs to know of his human dignity and worth, of his sinfulness and possibilities of saintliness, Msgr. Cartwright said.

He needs to feel the values of the heart and soul, to be able to bear his burdens and to "hear in his loneliness the voice of God," the priest said.

Bishop McNamara was celebrant of the benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament which concluded the service.

Plea Is Made For Forgotten Child of City

The Rev. Dr. Orris G. Robinson yesterday charged that Washington's city fathers and real estate men have "forgotten the child" in building the city.

Our children, he said in a sermon at Calvary Methodist Church, 1400 Columbia rd. nw., should be our major investment. Instead, they are "an especially small one."

"Washington is being changed rapidly from a city of homes to a city of efficiency units," he said. These "massive inns," the minister declared, are "very efficient—at keeping children out."

Driven from City

The young family is driven out of the city if the father is fortunate enough to have the income to buy a home, Dr. Robinson said.

The Negro population, he said, "is even more unfortunate than the white."

"Their income is less, they cannot move out, they are forced to live in crowded neighborhoods. The streets, therefore, become the playgrounds of their children."

Difficult Problem

"The first need in the United States and every other country is to take care of our homes and our children. No one will deny it is most difficult to maintain ideals and poise in a crowded home and rear children with ideals upon city streets," Dr. Robinson declared.

The home, he said, is of first importance today in teaching "by word and example that love and understanding are the way to solve the basic problems of domestic, social and international relations."

Illegal Liquor Sales, Gaming Charged to Man

John Martell, 39, of 936 I st. nw., was arrested yesterday in the 1300 block of New York ave. nw. and charged on six counts of selling liquor without a license.

He also was charged with possession of numbers slips and not having a tax stamp for whisky. Martell was released in $1500 bond for a Municipal Court appearance today.

Fresh Cabbage Juice Suggested For Peptic Ulcers

Washington, April 17 — The above heading appeared in an (AP) newspaper article which reads as follows: A remarkable speedup in the healing of peptic ulcers when treated with new cabbage juice was reported today by a California scientist.

In the first test of its kind on human beings, 31 patients, some with ulcers of long standing, received the cabbage juice treatment. Each drank about a quart of juice daily. In 11 cases the ulcers disappeared in six to nine days, said the scientist. He reported the tests in California Medicine, an official journal. One case required 23 days of treatment.

The tests indicate, but do not prove, the scientests said, that raw cabbage juice contains an unidentified substance which plays "a specific role in the healing of peptic ulcers."

Pure fresh cabbage juice and other fresh vegetable juices may be had in Washington from the Vita Food Co., at 3040 14th st. nw., or at the C & O Food Store, 519 11th st. nw., CO. 2980.

Operation Vittles Scores at Palace

By Richard L. Coe

THERE ARE SO many good points to "The Big Lift" at the Palace, that you should see it.

This is the story of Berlin's Operation Vittles; filmed on the spot, and as you watch the American planes land at Templehof with coal and food, in fog and cold, you're conscious of great events passing before your eyes.

Here, in brief, is what a really good propaganda picture can do, even though, in the course of two hours, Writer-Director George Seaton tries to do too much.

So great is the power of pictures, that words get in Seaton's way. His script makes room for four leading figures—two American enlisted men, two German girls. The EM begin their adventure at opposite ends of the approach to the defeated Germans. One, Montgomery Clift, is patient, sympathetic. The other, Paul Douglas, is frankly contemptuous, bitterly mindful of his days as a captured airman in a Nazi prison camp.

How a conniving fraulein disillusions the first and how just living with the Germans softens the second is the human aspect of Seaton's story. His words work overtime, as indeed do words in so many moving pictures. Douglas, for instance, has a girl friend who wants to know what democracy is and his explanations, both serious and comic, run too obtrusively, artificially, through the picture. True, one can imagine such a situation, but somehow the outcome is forced. Clift's romance with a young woman who merely wants to get to her ex-Nazi lover in St. Louis also has the basis of factual appeal, but again, in the words and plot development, there is too much detail, too much coating.

But traveling the airlift oneself is the stunning experience of "The Big Lift" and you'll never forget it. The technical details of landings at tricky Templehof are finely pictured, coming in over the very chimneys of houses and one is unobtrusively reminded that men died in making this cold war skirmish a victory.

Unspoken Propaganda

As for its pictured propaganda effect, "The Big Lift" is a humdinger. There's a scene at the borderland of the American, British and Soviet zones which illustrates the insane aspect of the Berlin tragedy. Caught just at the line, the hero and his girl are victims of a tug of war that goes on for hours; ironically, no one is certain just where the line is supposed to be. And there's a neat sequence on a subway train.

Compared with such pictures as "The Iron Curtain" and "Guilty of Treason," "The Big Lift" socks home the Soviet barbarism by virtue of its simple pictures.

And the shots of C-54s and C-47s coming into Berlin from all corners of the globe has a sweep which again benefits from lack of words.

The supporting cast is immensely effective, men of the Air Force playing themselves, unselfconsciously and so ably that an audience easily recognizes the reality Seaton sought to convey. The two German girls are Cornell Borchers, who looks like an individual not a mask, and Bruni Lobel, the dumb blonde.

"THE BIG LIFT," a Twentieth Century-Fox release, produced by William Perlberg, directed by George Seaton, screenplay by Seaton. At the Palace.

TONIGHT'S ARRIVAL: Edward Everett Horton brings his company to the stage of the Shirlington Theater in Virginia for a week's run in the Lonsdale comedy, "On Approval" There will be no Thursday night performance, the comedian's TV night in N. Y.

"TALENT SHOWCASE," the search for Capital talent sponsored by the Night-Hawk Social Club at the Lincoln Colonnade, got off to a glamorous start Saturday night with Tallulah Bankhead in the audience . . . The star of the Gayety's current "Private Lives" received a citation for her dogged and oft-repeated urgings for theater for all in the Nation's Capital . . . The Georgia-born daughter of a political family expressed her views repeatedly in the years we were without theater and the organization took the opportunity to thank her for her leadership . . . Saturday night she joined Duke Ellington's June Norton for "Carousel's" ballad, "If I Loved You" and stayed on to watch part of the novel semiprofessional night promoted by Walter L. Sutler.

WINNER of the One Act Play Tournament for the recreation department's groups G to K was the Tech Dramatic Club's junior group in "The Thrice Promised Bride," directed by Mrs. Adelaide Truesdell . . . Winning performances were Ann Bennett, in the winning play; Karl Taeuber, in "The Kelly Kid," and Jere B. Stern, in "A Night at an Inn" . . . Judges were Gordon Brigham of American University and Robert Hogan of the Mount Vernon Players.

A $500 scholarship, open to sophomores or juniors in any college in this area is being offered through the Washington chapter of the Society of Arts and Letters . . . Auditions will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Catholic University campus theater . . . Talent and scholarship are prerequisites and candidates should be prepared for one Shakespearean reading and one from any other play, total reading time not to exceed 10 minutes . . . Mrs. C. A. Spaatz, 1522 34th st. nw., can tell you more about it. Her phone's Hudson 7126.

A TRAIN ROBBER will be taking bows at Keith's Wednesday with the opening of "The Capture." . . . He's oldtimer Bill Carlisle, whose life story gave writer Niven Busch the idea for the film, which stars Lew Ayres and Teresa Wright . . . The reformed holder-upper of Union Pacific trains will explain why he thinks crime doesn't pay.

SEAT SALE begins today for "Brigadoon," next week's Gayety tenant, that charming musical fantasy about a Scottish village which comes to life every hundred years.

Billy Rose Would Stage Freedom Fair

An offer from Billy Rose, New York showman, to help put on a Sesquicentennial Freedom Fair in Washington will be presented formally to the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission this week, Carter T. Barron, commission executive vice chairman, said last night.

Rose offered his services "for the price of a pound of tobacco" in a telegram to Barron. The showman has produced aquacades and other presentations at fairs, including the 1939-40 New York World's Fair.

Rose said in his wire:

"It's high time a Freedom Fair was presented in this country, and Washington, of course, is the logical place for it. This fair should sell the advantages of our way of life, as compared to the poison being peddled by the boys in the Kremlin. And if I can be of any help dramatizing the story, my services are available for the price of a pound of tobacco."

$9248 Collected in Drive

Gifts collected in the Fairfax County-Falls Church March of Dimes Campaign this year totaled $9248, according to Edward K. Uhler, president of the Fairfax County Polio Foundation, and Joel Harris, chairman of the 1950 Falls Church drive.

Meeting Called On Laurel Water Dearth

Laurel, Md., citizens will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the National Guard Armory to discuss increasing the town's water supply.

The meeting was called by Mayor Merrill L. Harrison to discuss three plans presented in a recent report by the engineering firm of Whitman, Requardt & Associates of Baltimore, on the general water supply for the town.

Plan 1 suggests expansion of the present plant to a pumping capacity of one million gallons a day and installation of a new pumping plant on the Patuxent River above Walker Branch at a cost of $220,000.

The second plan suggests construction of a new million-gallon pumping station and water purification plant on the Patuxent River above Walker Branch, and the abandonment of the present plant, at an estimated cost of $209,000.

The third plan suggests installation of a 20-inch main between the Willis School water purification plant of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and Laurel, with abandonment of the present plant entirely, at a cost of $110,000.

The engineers recommend the third plan and also suggest that meter and flat rates for water be increased about 50 percent and that a program of installing water meters be started.

The engineering firm declared that construction of the 20-inch main would permit transmission of two million gallons a day and would be less expensive.

Laurel's present system was placed in service in 1916 with Laurel Lake as its main source. The lake apparently is fed from underground springs and has provided sufficient water in the past but is reported to be silted so badly that it now produces only about one-fourth of its original output.

George L. Hall, chief engineer of the Maryland State Department of Health and a representative of the engineering firm are expected to attend.

American Day Activities Set For May 21-22

"I Am An American" day—or days—will be observed here May 21 and 22, it was announced yesterday, with religious services and an extensive program at the Capitol Plaza.

President Truman is scheduled to be the principal speaker at the Capitol Plaza ceremonies on May 22. Other speakers will include Dr. Ralph Bunche, director of trusteeships of the United Nations; and Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Bill Boyd, known to movie and television fans as "Hopalong Cassidy," will also appear and will be in the reviewing stand to witness a parade which will start at 3:30 p. m.

Sponsors of the event are the "I Am an American" day committee, and the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission.

A special feature of the Capital Plaza ceremony will be recitation of the Salute to the Flag by Dace Epermanis, a 12-year-old Latvian girl, who has spent five years of her life in displaced persons camps in Europe. She was scheduled to arrive in New York this morning, the 150,000th displaced person to come to this country under a special act of Congress.

1000 Homes Destroyed

Slayer Search At Standstill

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., May 14 (Spl.).—Authorities tonight were at a complete standstill in their investigation of the death of a nude, unidentified, red-haired woman whose strangled body was thrown down a 40-foot embankment here four days ago.

Without an identification, they said they have no remaining clews to work on, and no worthwhile information to aid them in solving the murder. The body is now at Newton D. Baker Veterans Administration Hospital, near Martinsburg, W. Va., where it can be preserved for some time without burial. A number of persons viewed it today, but could not identify the victim.

If the Breakfast Nook Is Your Only 'Dining Room'; Anne Suggests Wooden Furniture for 'Formal' Look

DEAR ANNE:

Would you resolve a problem for us in furnishing a dining nook or dinette in a rambler we are planning to purchase? Some friends have told me the currently popular formica-topped, chrome-framed dinette sets are for kitchen use and that an all-wooden dining set would be more appropriate. Please let me know what present-day authorities dictate with respect to the furnishing of this part of the home.

Mrs. E. M., Washington.

Formica is often found in dining nooks nowadays. Whether you use it would depend largely on whether this is the only dining place in the house, it seems to me.

If you also have a dining room, you can equip this with all-wooden furniture and use the easily kept formica in the nook or "breakfast room." If however, the nook is the only place where meals will be served, you may want it to look a bit more formal, especially if you will entertain guests there. In this case, the wooden furniture would seem more appropriate.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me how many tablespoons of shortening (lard, vegetable, etc.) there are to a cup? Does one measure shortening (for a pie, as an example) by the tablespoon, or is there a shorter, quicker method?

I am an inexperienced prospective homemaker and have been unable to find the answer to this question, although I have consulted several cookbooks. I did try putting water in a measuring cup and measuring the shortening by the amount of water it displaced when added to the cup, but his proved unsatisfactory since the resulting pie crust always cantained too much shortening.

E. K., Washington.

A standard measuring cup always holds sixteen tablespoonsful, whether its contents are lard or the nectar of the gods.

In measuring shortening for pie, you can use either a tablespoon or a cup. If the recipe calls for ¼ cup of shortening, for instance, use 4 level tablespoonsful.

The method you mention—measuring the shortening in conjunction with water—is a practical one because it prevents the grease from sticking to the cup so annoyingly. If done carefully, you should wind up with exactly the same amount of shortening that you'd have if you measured it any other way. If, as above, the recipe calls for ¼ cup of shortening, fill your cup ¾ full with water, then drop in enough lard to bring the level up to the 1-cup line. If it still turns out that your pastry is too rich, cut down on the amount of shortening used.

DEAR ANNE:

One day recently, The Washington Post carried a pattern number for making chair and couch covers. Can you tell me the number and where to obtain it?

Mrs. L. B. H., Norfolk, Va.

Send 20 cents to The Washington Post, 102 Household Arts Dept., P. O. Box 168, Old Chelsea Station, New York, 11, N. Y., requesting instructions No. 7168.

DEAR ANNE:

In washing a nylon uniform, I left the small colored receipt of the cancer drive in the pocket. I have tried to remove the color but with no success. Can you help me?

Mrs. Esther Chapman, Washington.

You may be able to remove this dye by soaking the spot in hydrogen peroxide to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. If this fails, one of the bleaching solutions sold at drug stores for removing dye from cloth should do the trick.

DEAR ANNE:

I have had an operation recently which will keep me from work six weeks. I have received many get-well cards, plants, flowers, ice cream, fruit, money, gowns and visits.

Which of the above do I write thank-you cards for, or do I write notes for all? Will you be kind enough to give me one or two sample thank-you notes?

L. T., Washington.

Notes of thanks should be written for the gifts. Something like this: "Your lovely flowers arrived on a day when I was particularly low and I cannot tell you how much they cheered me up. Your kind thought of me was greatly appreciated and will be long remembered." Add a few words about your progress toward recovery and any personal message appropriate to the individual.

You can write notes of appreciation for the visits, too, if you wish. It's a gracious gesture, but not really necessary if you will see your friends in person soon. The same is true for the greeting cards. Thank people for them when you see them or phone when you are able.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Gridiron 'Repeat' Lets Ladies In On Laughs

By Elizabeth Maguire

SKITS sung Saturday evening at the spring dinner of the Gridiron Club were repeated yesterday before an audience which included ladies. The reception and show were from 5 to 7 p. m., with cocktails and coffee served before and after the show.

President Truman missed the reception last winter, and he missed this one, too. Honor guests in his place yesterday were the Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson, who were escorted to their places in the front row by the president of the Gridiron Club, Thomas L. Stokes, and Mrs. Stokes.

It was a song about Kansas City politics that brought the most applause and the biggest smiles from Republicans.

Among the thousand or more attending the reception and show were the vice president of the Gridiron Club, James T. Berryman, and Mrs. Berryman, who received with Mr. and Mrs. Stokes; the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet; the Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin Elizalde, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Elizalde; Mrs. Owen Brewster, Senator and Mrs. John W. Bricker and Senator and Mrs. Lister Hill.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth looked very chic in navy suit and navy carthwheel hat. Associate Justice and Mrs. Harold H. Burton were in the gathering, as were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Frank Pace, jr., the former Secretary of War and Mrs. Gordon Gray, Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, pretty Mrs. Clark Clifford and her pretty daughter, Miss Margery Clifford; Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John Steelman.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Graham, Mr. and Mrs. William Nylander, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brandt, J. Hayden and Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs were also guests.

Other Parties Brighten Weekend

OFFICERS of the Gridiron Club and out-of-town guests were entertained at a buffet luncheon yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Henle. The party was given in a private dining room of the Statler Hotel.

Members of the Paraguayan colony celebrated an important holiday yesterday. It was their Independence Day, dating back to 1811. The occasion was marked at a buffet supper party given at the embassy by the Ambassador and Senora de Boettner for Paraguayans and embassy staff members.

A dinner party was given last evening at the Congressional Club by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith honoring Mrs. J. Van Ness Ingram, who has just returned from a visit abroad. Other guests were Col. and Mrs. Larry Skinner, USA; Maj. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, jr., and Mrs. Donald Lathrom.

Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould will entertain at luncheon at her home on Woodland dr. on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the Administrative Assistant to the President.

Your Figure

Even Truman Must Count The Calories

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU are having trouble keeping even with the calories . . . well, you are not alone. Calories are nonpartisan, so regardless of your politics, you'll be interested to know that the President of the United States has to count them, too. He told me so . . .

The occasion was the annual dinner and stunt party given by the Women's National Press Club. At a reception before the dinner, I was startled to look up and suddenly see President Truman, in person. When he gave me his famous smile, I thought this is my chance.

He was a little surprised when I inquired eagerly how he's doing on his diet, but he came right through and announced—proud as any reducer—that the situation is under control, he has lost 11 pounds with only 4 more to go. Congratulations, Mr. President!

It appears calories are no issue with our genial Vice President. Mr. Barkley implied with an expansive gesture that he doesn't give a hoot about them . . . but he's mighty proud of his wife's figure.

Mrs. Barkley immediately put your dietitian on the spot to figure out a plan by which extra pounds can be avoided in the Nation's Capital. That's a tall order in this entertaining town, particularly for the popular Mrs. Barkley. But I'll work on it, for I don't want to let the Second Lady of our land down, especially since she told me she has been keeping in trim with this column for 20 years. (I started just about that long ago in her hometown of St. Louis. It seems but yesterday!)

Well . . . tomorrow it won't be so hard for us to get back to routine dieting . . . knowing that the President, the First Lady and the Second Lady all count calories, too.

MARVIN BYRUM

. . . On the way down

A 22-year-old electrical appliance service man from Norfolk yesterday broke a world's record by walking down the 898 steps of the Washington Monument on his hands in 41 minutes and 30 seconds.

The man who performed this feat was Marvin Byrum, who has been walking on his hands for the past five years—off and on, that is. He is a trampolin instructor at the Norfolk YMCA and a tumbling instructor for the Norfolk Boys Club.

Byrum said he had been training for the marathon hand-walk ever since friends showed him newspaper stories about Glen Sunby, 28-year-old New York acrobat who walked down on his hands in 1 hour 25 minutes on December 28, 1949. That was the first time it had been done, according to Monument guards.

The guards didn't know Byrum was doing the stunt, as the athlete and five friends, who attested to the time he made, rode up in the elevator just like tourists.

Byrum's wife, Jean, 22, drove up with him yesterday but refused to watch hubby doing his stuff. She was gazing at the more static exhibits of the Smithsonian Institution at the time.

Byrum made about 28 brief rest stops and walked across the landings between flights on his feet, as Sunby had done. The record time included the stops.

Two Sorts of People: We and City Folk

Karl P. Abbott, who has owned some of America's finest resort hotels, gives a nostalgic account of his experiences—dating back to the time he dragged city folk into a village inn that had one bath per floor.

Born in Bethlehem, N. H., he subsequently decided to follow his father's footsteps in making the hotel business his career. Hotels he later ran included the Vendome and Somerset in Boston; the Flamingo, Belleview Biltmore and Vinoy Park in Florida; the Dodge in Washington; the Westbury in New York, the Towers in Brooklyn and many others.

Married and father of three children, he lives in Florida. For a hobby, he collects old guns, hunts and fishes.

This is the first in a series of six chapters condensed from the current popular book, "Open for the Season," published by Doubleday & Co.

Father was like a farmer; every summer brought a new crop to his hotel

By Karl P. Abbott

CHAPTER ONE

Father ran a small hotel. He used to lean against the desk and say, "What we need is folks." He kept a pen in an Irish potato.

This hotel, The Uplands, sat high above Main Street in Bethlehem, New Hampshire, in the White Mountains. Bethlehem consisted mostly of one street, clinging to the side of the mountain.

There were just two sorts of people when I was a boy. Our kind and city folk.

As soon as we heard the whistle of the first train, father would send me running down to the station to help. Lem, our driver, and Dan, our porter, already would be there.

Pretty nearly everyone in Bethleham was down to see the train come in.

Our coach stood in the long line of 30 coaches backed into the row by the station.

Lem made a fine figure sitting on the box. Lem was a character. He had lost the index finger on his right hand and always said he wore it off "pointing out the damned mountains to the city folks."

Dan began hollering, "Uplands" at one end of the platform, and I took up my post at the other end and yelled, "Uplands" too.

The horses backed and reared, the long line of coaches wavered, porters shouted, drivers swore, and city folks climbed into the wrong coaches and out again, dropped parcels and parasols, lost their baggage, and called out greetings.

No matter where people said they wanted to go, Dan and I assured them ours was the only coach that went there.

Sometimes guests were with us for days before they realized they were in the wrong hotel. By that time they liked us so well they stayed on.

Father and mother started in the hotel business the way it started in early America. First the farmhouse, with maybe a room or two for guests, then a larger kitchen, a croquet ground, pehaps eventually a tennis court.

This was the evolution of the country inn and its keepers, "the friend by the side of the road." Father opened his first hotel in 1884. Multiply each year since by two seasons, summer and winter, and I have just completed without a break our one hundred thirtieth season as hotel men, father and son.

Our little lobby in Bethlehem swarmed with men in single-breasted coats, pants with creases, stickpins in their Ascot ties, derbies, and gold watches with heavy chains.

The younger men carried mandolins. All a practicing Lothario needed in those days was a mandolin and a pound of chocolates.

The women were decked out with bustles and leg-o'-mutton sleeves. Big hats piled with feathers, birds, flowers, and veils were worn over high pompadours.

We put most of the week-end or "excursion guests" in "Angel Alley." This was a series of small rooms up under the roof, with a bowl and pitcher and slop jar, which we sold for two dollars, American plan, the standard excursion rate.

Not a hotel in Bethlehem had rooms with private bath. Uplands had one public bath on each floor and charged 25 cents for the use of it.

Behind Angel Alley was a big room with about 20 beds which was a dormitory for the young men guests. Father called it "the Ram Pasture."

Between our kitchen and the dining room was the storeroom. Father kept the key on a long chain buttoned onto his suspenders. Every time I passed I gave the doorknob a shake, just in case. Once it turned—he had forgotten to lock it.

I tiptoed in and stood in the cool semi-darkness afforded by one small window that faced the girls' dormitory.

Standing there, I drank in the sights and smells of well-filled shelves stocked with large boxes of raisins, crystallized ginger, fruits, and cookies.

A 10-pound box of fig newtons, my favorite delicacy, was on the top shelf. By wriggling the cracker barrel under the shelf I was able to lift the box to the floor. It had a glass front, and as I sat gloating over my treasure and cramming my mouth full of fig newtons, I chanced to look up.

Through the window in the adjoining building I saw a big blond waitress, naked as the day she was born, standing in a washbowl, taking a sponge bath.

This was the end of the world. All I could do was tear out of there. When I came to a stop, I was in the middle of the lobby, my eyes bulging and my mouth and hands crammed with cookies.

At that time I didn't know which dred.

He asked me if I intended going into the hotel business. I nodded.

I liked better, the girl or the fig newtons.

Charlie Greenleaf who ran the Profile House, nearby, also ran the Vendome in Boston. He was a cheerful short man who catered to Ward McAllister's Four Hun-

"Well," he said, "it's the easiest business in the world to learn. Just get a hotel, stand behind the desk, and the first guest who comes into the lobby will tell you how to run it."

Then he quoted Kin Hubbard: "I've just been over to the poorhouse to see an old friend who used to run a hotel to please everybody."

A New Report

Iron Curtain Can't Stop Radio Vaticano

By John Crosby

POPE PIUS recently told a group of broadcasters in Italy that radio "often is the only comfort, the only support from outside." While he didn't mention the Iron Curtain countries, it seemed fairly obvious that he was referring to radio as the only link between the Catholics in those countries and their church.

The Vatican's own "comfort and support" is the Vatican Radio, one of the most widely quoted and least known of all radio stations. I am indebted to John Wingate, a new York radio reporter, for a few details about Radio Vaticano.

It's like stumbling on a radio station right out of the middle of Middle Ages, Wingate confesses. The Vatican Radio is situated on a high hill behind St. Peter's Basilica—its six tall towers look down directly to the Pope's chambers. The studios, eight or nine of them, are immense Renaissance rooms with vaulted ceilings, 30 feet high, wainscoted, paneled and lined with frescoes. Overladen as the studios are with art and history, they would give an American sound engineer the horrors.

Many Mantels

BUSTLING about from studio to studio are Capuchin priests with enormous beards. Franciscan friars, wearing their brown habits with their great sashes and little monks hats, attend the transmitters. Inside one of the studios, you will see a Dominican priest in his snow white robes, taking a time cue from a Jesuit priest in his great flowing black cassock.

It looked, said Wingate, like something from another world but he soon discovered that the Vatican radio was as bustling, as busy and occasionally as hectic as American radio. One monsignor even confessed that he had an ulcer.

The Vatican Radio is authorized to use 50,000 watts, the strength of the clear channel stations in this country, but because of a bad grounding system it puts out only about 30,000. It can be heard over most of Italy except in some northern cities, but it doesn't penetrate Sicily too well. It claims the largest audience in Europe but, since there are no rating systems, it's impossible either to prove or disprove this claim.

While propaganda is its most publicized operation, the Vatican Radio's programs devote more time to church dogma, theology and philosophy. The greatest philosophers of the church will speak for hours on, say, St. Thomas Aquinas' contribution to modern ethics. Programs are not divided into neat little half hour and hour segments such as our own: they continue until they are over. Occasionally there are startling variations. Once Wingate heard an erudite Jesuit lecture on the proper method of identifying English reptiles and birds.

Pageantry Broadcast

MUCH OF THE pageantry and ritual of St. Peter's is broadcast in its entirety, including the magnificent St. Peter's organ, the choir and the great trumpets played from the dome of St. Peter's.

In the field of music the Vatican Radio is unique: Its record library is filled with liturgical music, much of which is not available outside Rome.

The difference in approach between America and the Vatican is most striking in the matter of music. Where we have fanatical engineers who insist on the most perfect tonal reproduction, the Vatican engineers ignore reproduction—some of their records are terribly scratchy by our standards—and insist on perfection of performance. Once Wingate heard five engineers and three producers argue for an hour about the accuracy of a few notes at the end of a recording. They were trying to determine whether one singer in a chorus of 62 was off key.

Some Proper Bostonians Aren't Very

Alden H. Ryan of 910 Enderby dr., Alexandria, Va., passes along the story of a friend who participated in a memorable taxi ride in Boston.

The driver was a grizzled veteran, constitutionally incapable of driving at anything less than breakneck speed.

At one point in the journey, the cab bore down on a suburban intersection devoid of traffic lights and stop signs.

Coming at right angles, the passenger noted with deepening dismay, was another car. It, too, was going too fast; and neither driver gave any indication of yielding the right of way. A smashup seemed inevitable.

Throwing himself to the floor of the cab, the passenger shut his eyes and braced himself for the rending impact of steel on steel.

But nothing happened.

Our frightened hero stuck his head up just in time to catch a fleeting glimpse of the rapidly disappearing intersection. The other car had skidded to a stop just short of becoming a statistic, and its driver sat mopping his brow.

The hacker glanced back and saw his terrified passenger still kneeling on the floor. Jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of the other car, the imperturbable cabbie murmured:

"No guts."

COMPLAINT DEPT.

I got a phone call from an irate subscriber Saturday morning.

"I sent you a Give-Away item and asked you to run it in Saturday morning's paper," she complained. "I've just read your Saturday column and my item isn't listed."

"I'm sorry," I said, "but I don't recall getting a letter from you. Maybe it got lost. When did you mail it?"

"It couldn't have been lost," she snapped "because I addressed it very plainly and mailed it myself."

"When?"

"Yesterday exening."

"Well, that explains it, of course. I haven't even gotten your letter yet."

"You mean it's too late to get it in the Saturday paper, even though I mailed it on Friday?"

"I'm afraid it is. The Saturday paper was printed and delivered hours ago."

"Hmph!" she snorted. "You must be mighty slow getting out a paper if you need more than one day to handle a simple little sentence."

It serves me right. If I wouldn't come into the office on my off day, things like that wouldn't happen to me.

Merry-Go-Round

Wickersham Eyed in Payroll Case

By Drew Pearson

Shortly after Congressman Parnell Thomas, Republican, went to jail for salary kickbacks, this column pointed to a Democratic Congressman, Victor Wickersham of Oklahoma, who seemed guilty of certain monkey business with his congressional payroll. Specifically, I showed that:

Wickersham

1. Wickersham was paying one employe, James W. Taylor, $7720 a year, though aforesaid Taylor actually worked as salesman for the Herd Equipment Co. of Oklahoma City.

2. A second employe, Lloyd Matthews, drew $2298 though actually spending his time in Wickersham's Washington real estate firm rather than attending the interests of Oklahoma voters.

3. It was also shown that Wickersham, apparently unwilling to support his 72-year-old father, had kept him on the Library of Congress payroll as a watchman for seven years; later got him a job as a Capitol elevator operator.

4. Wickersham had operated a used-car lot on a rent-free, tax-free parking lot reserved for Congressmen.

Since publication of the above, Congessman Wickersham stated at a Jackson-Jefferson day dinner in Oklahoma City that "Pearson had made an apology."

No such apology was ever made. But I am going to make one now. The apology is for underestimating Congressman Wickersham's gall for feeding at the public trough and his efforts to conceal it.

On the day that the Merry-Go-Round column was published—December 12, 1949—disclosing the Congressman's above-mentioned salary operations, Wickersham had a bad attack of jitters. One of his employes, Lloyd Matthews, described these jitters in a letter to Wickersham's secretary, Aubrey Witt, at that time in Oklahoma. Matthews was the man who worked in the Congressman's real estate office but drew money from the Congressional office.

"Mr. Wickersham finally reached me tonight after several efforts and undying persistence," Matthews wrote. "He told me to do exactly what I had planned to do anyway, keep my mouth shut. Amazing how a man's magnanimity increases in direct proportion to the duress under which he is subjected. He, out of the clear blue sky, asked me how I would like to help with the census . . . his remark was plainly forced, but he said it . . . adding whipping cream to the dessert, he continued: 'How would you like to go to West Point?'"

Four days later—December 16—real estate employe Matthews wrote Witt another warning letter in Oklahoma: "Be discretionary in conversing with my folks," he said.

By this time, the FBI was probing the facts exposed by this columnist, and Wickersham's staff was called on the carpet. Matthews reported on this in a letter to Witt on December 24.

"Mr. Wickersham and his wife are in a pronounced state of worry . . ." reported Matthews. "The Assistant Attorney General (Alex Campbell) has ordered this investigation. You and Margaret (Margaret Hughes, another Wickershaw secretary) will be thoroughly quizzed on your return and probably will be asked to render a sworn statement. They have already elicited such a statement from Mrs. Calloway (another employe). Yesterday morning I was grilled for no less than two hours. Tuesday morning I must return to sign my statement. Mr. Wickersham wants me to have Joe King (Wickersham's lawyer) go over it before I sign."

As Matthews' letter indicates, he collaborated with Wickersham and his lawyer in preparing a statement for the FBI. When Witt returned to Washington, on the other hand, he refused to give the FBI a signed statement. Out of loyalty to his boss, he also withheld what he knew about the office payroll practices.

Later, however, Witt's conscience bothered him, and he finally gave the FBI a statement to the effect that Wickersham had been taking salary kickbacks from his employe, Lloyd Matthews.

It is interesting that Wickersham also claimed in his House speech that he himself had "requested the FBI to make a complete, thorough investigation of these spiteful, irresponsible, political charges."

This, however, does not agree with what Matthews wrote privately when he reported the investigation had been ordered by the Assistant Attorney General.

However, since the Congressman says he welcomes an investigation, here are some further tips the FBI might wish to check:

1. Why was young Matthews offered a job in Wickersham's office for $200 per month, then paid $460 a month beginning his first day, June 1, 1949? This was the second highest salary in the office, though Matthews was only 20 years old, just out of high school and green at the work. Few high school youngsters make $5520 a year.

2. Check Matthews' bank account to see whether he deposited $400 on January 9, and whether this was money refunded to him by Wickersham after the FBI started its investigation.

3. Check the payments for the automatic electric typewriters in Wickersham's office to see whether Matthews signed a note to pay $77 per month on the typewriters.

This ends my apology to the Congressman from Oklahoma.
